14 Killed, 6 Hurt As Train Runs Into Bus

Driver of Jitney Bus Runs Into Path of Fast New York Central Train

WARNING IS DISREGARDED

Watchman Makes Frantic Effort to Stop Bus But Driver Ignores Him

By United Press Leased Wire
Painesville, Ohio. — Failure of the driver of a jitney bus, loaded to capacity to see the watchman's red danger signal was believed by authorities Saturday to have caused the grade crossing accident here in which 14 persons were killed, 4 injured probably fatally and 2 others less seriously hurt.

A New York Central fast mail train speeding at 60 miles an hour crashed into the jitney, hurling bodies of the dead and injured along the track for 400 yards.

The accident occurred shortly before midnight. Not one of the 20 passengers of the jitney bus escaped injury or death. They were returning home from a dance.

Charles Sullivan, the one survivor who was able to talk said the bus did not stop before going over the crossing.

A. W. Barnes, grade crossing watchman said he shouted warnings to the driver of the bus and tried to stop him but his voice was drowned by the roar of the speeding engine.

Most of the bodies were mangled almost beyond recognition.

THREE DIE IN FIRE
Norfolk, Va. — Three persons were killed and five overcome by smoke in an early morning hotel fire here Saturday.

Those who perished were trapped by flames rising from a room.

The ruins of the hotel, the Garden of Italy, are being searched for more victims.

HAYS LEAVES U. S. SERVICE TO TAKE CHARGE OF MOVIES

Former Postmaster General Aims to Put Movies in Every Church and School

By Raymond Clapper
(Copyright 1922, by United Press)
Washington. — Movies in every school and church is the aim of Will H. Hays, who retired Saturday as postmaster general to become the "Judge Landis" of the motion picture industry.

"The educational movie ought to take its place beside McGuffey's third reader," Hays said, to emphasize this phase of his work. The possibilities of the movies in an educational way have been almost overlooked in the rapid rise of the theatrical end of the business."

Hays, of slight, boyish figure, sat in the big leather chair of his government office for the last time. There was a noticeable tinge of regret.

He breaks off a political career which carried him from the obscurity of a country lawyer's office at Sullivan, Ind., to the president's cabinet with swiftness and speed.

"But, I'm out of politics now," Hays said rather regretfully. "Of course I can't help having a deep interest in Republican affairs, but it will only be the interest that every good citizen ought to have in politics. This talk about my planning to use the movies for political purposes is silly. I couldn't do it if I wanted to—which I don't. I would feel before I started if I tried to use my new position for political purposes."

STRANGLER LEWIS IS WORLD WRESTLING CHAMP

Wichita, Kan.—Ed. "Strangler" Lewis Friday night regained the world's champion wrestling title from Stanislaus Zyzysko, who held the belt for a year after taking it from Lewis in a one-fall match.

The Pole took the first fall. Lewis came back with the headlock taking the second and third. The last time the Pole went down dazed in two minutes.

SLIGHT INCREASE IN STATE PROPERTY TAX

Madison. — The total general property tax levy last year was an increase of less than one half of one per cent over that of 1920, the state tax commission announced in a bulletin on city tax rates Saturday. The average local tax rate was $20.20 per thousand, an increase of 10 cents over the previous year.

The per capita general tax rate was $9.15, as against $9.21 in 1920.

HERE SUNDAY

JUDGE K. M. LANDIS

WILSON'S HEALTH IS MUCH IMPROVED OVER A YEAR AGO

Former President Has No Bitterness Because of His Defeat

By United Press Leased Wire
Washington.—One year in the quiet seclusion of a private citizen—away from the worries and responsibilities of the White house—has brought improved general health to Woodrow Wilson, his intimate friends said Saturday.

His health is now said to be better generally than at any time since he broke near Wichita, Kansas, under the strain of his vigorous stump campaign for the league of nations during the fall of 1919.

But the closest friends of the former president admit that there is virtually no chance of him ever completely regaining his health.

A year ago today, Wilson, his face almost an ashen gray and deeply lined, hobbled into the capitol against the advice of his physician to wind up his administration and to take part in the inaugural of President Harding.

Today as the result of the extreme care with which his health is guarded, more color has appeared in Wilson's face, he is able to talk with less difficulty, he can use his afflicted arm more, his countenance seems more cheerful, his list of visitors has increased, he follows the newspapers rather closely and he is following the arms conference treaties and other national and international developments with close interest.

Close friends say there is virtually no bitterness in his conversation because of the overwhelming defeat of his party in the last election.

HARDING DENIES HE HAS ASKED HARVEY TO QUIT

By United Press Leased Wire
Washington. — President Harding Saturday authorized an official denial of reports published in London that he had decided to ask George Harvey, ambassador to Great Britain, to resign, or that the envoy was planning to do so.

NEWBERRY IS MADE ISSUE IN SENATE RACE

Michigan Man Seeks Election to Senate on Anti-Newberry Platform

By United Press Leased Wire
Washington. — "The Newberry issue" will be fought out within the ranks of the Republican party at the forthcoming congressional primary in Senator Newberry's home state of Michigan.

Representative Patrick Kelly, from the sixth Michigan district, Saturday announced his candidacy for the Republican senatorial nomination against Senator Townsend, incumbent, and in a statement made plain he intends to make the expenditure of large sums of money the outstanding issue. Townsend supported Newberry in the fight to expel him from the senate because of expenditures in the Newberry-Ford campaign.

Striking directly at the arguments of the Newberry supporters in the senate who claimed the senate did not know of the expenditures and that there was no financial corruption, Kelly said:

"Michigan must not accept the doctrine advocated by some that it is proper to spend any sum of money in behalf of a candidate provided it is not used for corrupt purposes. Now is the time for Michigan to condemn this proposition."

"To select a candidate for the senate ought not to be a difficult task for the Republican party in Michigan," Kelly said in a statement. "The people should be able to make this nomination practically without the expenditure of any money."

"It is their duty to do so. It is vital to Michigan that money shall not be a determining or even an important factor in this election."

CHURCH CONSCIOUS AS HE NEARS DEATH

Youthful Slayer Shakes Off Stupor Just Before He Goes to Gallows

Chicago. — Harvey W. Church, strapped to a chair, dropped through the trap at the county jail at 3:50 o'clock Friday afternoon and ten minutes later was dead of strangulation. The force of the drop broke the chair but did not dislocate his neck.

Thus ended the career of one of the most cold blooded murderers in the criminal history of Chicago, to save whose life the most frantic efforts were made by various attorneys.

Alienist have claimed all along that Church was simulating insanity and this was proven by the fact that he shook off his stupor on the way to the gallows and, during his last moments in the death chamber, called for his parents and his sister. His mother fainted and was unable to respond, but his father and sister did what they could to comfort him.

On the way to the gallows he perspired freely and, after the noose and cap had been adjusted, he began to pray. At first he mumbled, but his voice became stronger and he repeated the Lord's prayer distinctly.

Then he lapsed into silence again, the signal was given and the trap was sprung. These were the first words he had spoken for forty-six days—since he began his hunger strike.

TWO SLEUTHS CATCH 4 BANDITS AFTER FIGHT

By United Press Leased Wire
Mississippi. — Detectives early Saturday captured four alleged bandits after a revolver battle.

Detective Mehan found Fred and Alex Goodie in an alley back of the Glickman and company store and after a short, revolver duel captured them. Detective Levans found L. A. Merritt and Ed. Goodie at the front door. They attempted to escape in an automobile but were caught after several shots were fired.

HARDING WILL REMAIN OUT OF INDIANA RACE

President Will Not Meddle in Race Between New and Beveridge

By David Lawrence
Copyright, 1922, by Post, Pub. Co.
Washington. — President Harding and John C. Schaffer, publisher of a string of newspapers three of which are in Indiana, have reached an understanding about the political contest between Senator Harry New and former Senator Beveridge of Indiana which throws an interesting light on what the presidential attitude will be toward Republican primaries throughout the nation this year.

Mr. Schaffer came to the White House merely to pay his respects but inevitably the conversation turned to Indiana politics. The president is a warm friend of Senator Harry New, who is seeking renomination and in his heart hopes New will win. Mr. Schaffer is a friend of both Senator New and former Senator Beveridge but believes the interests of Indiana and the nation would be served better by the nomination and election of Albert Beveridge.

For weeks it has been said in Indiana that President Harding would throw the full weight and influence of his position to Harry New and take an active part in the primary campaign. Friends of former Senator Beveridge have hoped Mr. Harding would remain neutral and preserve party harmony.

The president sketched to Mr. Schaffer the origin of his deep interest in Harry New, their many years of companionship in the United States senate and their earlier political relations. He made it plain that it would be ungracious of him to take sides against Mr. New. On the other hand, a president said it was his best duty to the people of Indiana to support the Republican party as a whole in this state—should decide whether they want Harry New or Albert Beveridge and was willing to abide by their judgment. In other words Mr. Harding promises his full support to Mr. Beveridge if the latter is nominated.

Mr. Schaffer not to be outdone and insisting that the fight was on a high plane of intellectual values to the state and the nation of two contending candidates promised that if Harry New were renominated he would give him his hearty support in the campaign for election.

LEGION DENIES IT IS LOSING MEMBERS

Officers Have Indorsement of Every State in Fight for Bonus

Indianapolis, Ind. — The American legion Saturday denied claim of opponents of the bonus bill now pending in Congress that the legion had lost members because of its stand on the measure.

From a paid-up membership of 433,000 in 1919, the legion jumped to 896,000 in 1921, it was stated at national headquarters here. More than half of these have paid their annual dues for 1922 and dues are being received at the rate of 5,000 daily.

It is estimated that the actual membership of the legion in the local and state jurisdictions approaches 2,000,000. Many of these are unemployed, it was said, and several hundred thousand likely are being carried by their state or local organizations.

Every national convention, every meeting of the executive board, has endorsed the stand of the leaders for a bonus.

WAGE CUTS UNJUST, A. F. OF L. AVERS

Washington.—A large portion of the nation's industries have concluded a prosperous year and pleas for wage cuts are unjust, an official review of big corporation earnings compiled by the American Federation of Labor states Saturday.

The survey charges that: Railroad earnings increased in 1921 over 1920. Annual profits in retail stores and railroad equipment were enormous. Several steel companies showed huge earnings.

Many big corporations declared startling dividends and made big increases in working capital. "This does not represent a picture of the entire industrial field," the survey added. "Many companies lost money during the last year but a great many have reaped fabulous profits."

The plan for wage reductions is "unjust," the survey says.

LEGION DENIES IT IS URGING TAX ON SALES

Executive Committee Denies Report Appearing in Milwaukee Paper

PLAN FOR NEXT MEETING

Head of Veterans Bureau Compliments Legion on Its Activities

Emphatic denial was made by the state executive committee of the Wisconsin department of the American legion at its banquet in the French room of the Sherman house Friday evening of Milwaukee newspaper report which said the Badger service men were backing the sales tax as a means of raising money for the proposed soldier bonus.

The newspaper account was read at the meeting and a resolution adopted saying the statement was erroneous. "as it never has been the policy of the American legion to suggest or dictate the method to be used in raising the funds to pay the adjusted compensation."

It was made plain by the committee that the manner of raising the money is left to congress and that it was not within the province of the legion to say how this money should be obtained.

LOCAL MEN SPEAK

The state officers and committee men were guests of the executive committee of Oney Johnston post at the dinner. L. O. Graef, commander of the local post, acted as toastmaster. Impromptu talks were given by E. J. Barrett, Sheboygan, state commander and several state officials, and by Charles Green, F. H. Bellevue, Thomas Morrissey, L. Hugo Keller and other local men. William C. Foster of Elkhorn, committee man from the first congressional district, amused the guests with a number of stories.

A telegram from Col. Charles R. Forbes, Chicago, head of the western division of the United States veterans' bureau, was read at the meeting. Mr. Forbes expressed appreciation of the cooperation and assistance rendered to the bureau, and for the constructive criticism which has helped to improve the bureau's service.

"Let us work to the end that every deserving disabled man of this republic is accorded the benefits provided for, and in his behalf I pledge you my undying efforts to achieve this result," Mr. Forbes said.

A meeting of the executive committee was held Friday afternoon at which a large volume of routine business was disposed of. Designs for the athletic medal to be presented to the best high school athlete in the state were approved. Plans also were made for the publicity for the coming state convention at Beloit, and the 1923 state officers' conference. Financial statements were submitted and a number of cases of former service men needing treatment were acted upon.

SIX MORE BROKERS ARE FORCED TO QUIT

New York Legislature Planning Investigation of Money Situation

New York. — Forty brokerage houses have crashed since Jan. 1 in the greatest panic of its kind in history. Further collapses are expected Saturday.

The New York Stock exchange showed a steady advance in stock quotations which contributes to the downfall of alleged "bucketshops."

Six houses closed their doors Friday. Frenzied customers are besieging other houses whose financial stability is questioned.

Attorney Stanton is continuing his probe, and the state legislature at Albany is laying plans for an investigation of the whole situation. Meanwhile many brokers who have been indicted continue to flee the city. Police in cities hundreds of miles from New York have been asked to watch for them. More indictments are expected.

LLOYD GEORGE IS SAFELY IN SADDLE

London.—Definite proof that Lloyd George has won his fight for peace in the coalition ranks for the time being was seen by political observers Saturday in an interview with Sir George Younger, published by the Cardiff Western Mail, in which the unionist "die hard" leader expressed regret that his recent speeches have been interpreted as attacks upon the prime minister.

WIRE SERVICE IS RESTORED IN THIS DISTRICT

Telephone and Traction Companies are Making Splendid Progress

Commercial telephone service between Appleton and Milwaukee was restored early Saturday morning by the Wisconsin Telephone Co. and conversation may now be had with any place in the world for the first time since the sleet storm which caused millions of dollars worth of damage a week ago last Wednesday. Two large copper wires were strung from Green Bay to Campellsport, a distance of 89 miles, to meet the same number of strands strung from Milwaukee to Campellsport.

Long distance telephone conversations will be limited to three minutes, however, until the work is more advanced. The few wires are sufficient to take care of all the traffic if protracted conversations are permitted.

WORK LATE AT NIGHT

Electric lights will be restored to nearly all of Appleton's homes by Monday evening. It was announced from the office of the traction company. One crew worked until after midnight Friday repairing broken wires. Powerful search lights provided illumination. A large crew is working at Neenah where the storm damage was much more severe than here and it is probable that all service will be restored there by a week from tonight.

A crew of men started Saturday morning stringing electric wires between Hilbert and Sherwood. The work on that seven mile stretch was delayed because of inability to obtain wire. The power lines to Seymour. (Continued on Page 5.)

BOARD TO MAKE FINAL DECISION ON ROAD PROGRAM

Supervisors Also May Consider Accommodations for Women Jurors

Although only a routine program is in prospect for the Outagamie county board session which opens in the courthouse next Tuesday, it is conceded possible that a few matters of more than passing interest will be taken up.

Among these will be a final decision on what this county intends to do in road building the coming summer. The county road and bridge committee and A. G. Brusewitz, county highway commissioner, will be prepared to report to the board on the advisability of accepting reductions in the price of cement offered by cement manufacturers. If a favorable decision is made, the next step will be a final approval of the highway department's plans for gravel and hard road construction this year.

Remodeling the interior of the courthouse to accommodate women jurors is another matter upon which action is likely to be taken. With many counties in the state having already made the required changes, it is felt that this county must fall in line and be prepared to receive women in the jury box.

Besides passing on bills, the routine business will consist of making appropriations to meet appropriations made by townships in the county for highway improvement, as is required by highway improvement laws.

GIRLS DENY THEY CAN DRESS ON $87 A YEAR

By United Press Leased Wire
Topeka, Kas. — Mass meetings by working girls and other women to plan a "fight" on any attempt that may be made to make them wear 25 cent hose and clothes themselves on a total of $87.55 a year, will be held here next week. D. G. Walker, president of the Retail Clerks' union, indicated Saturday.

The pulpits Saturday joined in the Kansas minimum wage for women row precipitated when employers' witnesses testified $87.55 a year is sufficient for a girl to dress on.

GAME ASSOCIATION TO HOLD MEETING TONIGHT

Chairman of the various committees of the Outagamie County Fish and Game Protective association are being urged to attend a meeting of the association at 7:30 Saturday evening in the office of the Actual Business College at the call of the president, W. R. Wheaton.

The meeting is called for the purpose of arranging a prospectus for the year's activities. There are many things which the association aims to do to extend its work and it must decide early in the year to what lines it will confine its efforts.

Bonus Assured For War Heroes

Landis Can't Come Tonight; Be Here Sunday

Inability of Judge K. M. Landis to reach Appleton until Sunday caused the cancellation of his address which was to have been made at the state American Legion conference banquet at 6:30 Saturday evening in the armory. The banquet is to be held as scheduled, and another speaker will be substituted.

Judge Landis has assured officers of Oney Johnston post that he will be here Sunday. He will deliver a public address at 10 o'clock Sunday morning in Lawrence Memorial chapel. The meeting will be open to everybody in Appleton, with no admission to be charged.

E. J. Barrett, Sheboygan, state commander is to speak at the afternoon session in the chapel, beginning at 2 o'clock. An address will follow by A. A. Vanduyke, commander of the department of Minnesota. Alvin M. Owsley, Indianapolis, national legion Americanization chairman also is to speak. There will be no sessions Sunday evening.

Approximately 500 men arrived in Appleton for the gathering and a reception staged by Oney Johnston post. Headquarters have been established in the Sherman house.

Conferences and addresses will continue through Sunday afternoon. There will be a banquet at 6:30 in the armory. Judge K. M. Landis was unable to reach Appleton and will speak in the chapel at 10 o'clock Sunday morning instead.

Commander Edward J. Barrett of Sheboygan scored the financial interests which selfishly opposed the adjusted compensation and said the bonus would pass in spite of them. He urged the legion to take up the patriotic work which the Grand Army of the Republic is laying down, asked for more Americanization work among veterans and made an appeal to veterans to work for higher physical standards among Wisconsin's youth.

BUREAUS FUNCTIONING

Unemployment methods used by American legion posts in Milwaukee were outlined by J. V. Houghtaling, secretary of the Wisconsin legion council, and urged officers to work with their city officials to help the jobless veteran. Work of the Woman's Auxiliary of the American Legion was described by Mrs. Frank E. Wilson, Eau Claire, state auxiliary president.

Assurances of Commander Barrett that the government bureaus were functioning as rapidly as possible to aid disabled veterans were refuted by delegates from Milwaukee legion post No. 1, who demanded that the Chicago division of the United States Veterans' bureau be investigated. It was said that enough evidence was in the hands of the Milwaukee delegates to support its claims. A grievance committee consisting of O. W. Rolfe, Milwaukee, chairman, O. K. Anderson, Superior, and Charles C. Baker, Appleton, was appointed to confer with the Milwaukee men and report back to the conference.

United States cannot afford to deny the men who served in the World War adjusted compensation, Mr. Barrett told the delegates. He said the president will have to listen to the people and that the bonus is coming sooner or later. It may be delayed a few months and it may not come in just the form desired, but it surely is coming.

"Organized wealth is opposed to the bonus," Mr. Barrett said. "Bankers, the chamber of commerce and other financial interests are fighting this expenditure. They don't take into consideration whether it is due or not, but their plea is that the country can't afford it. If the war had continued only a few months more, the government would have spent a few billions which could be paid now as adjusted compensation."

HELP DISABLED MEN

Work of the National and Wisconsin departments thus far has been largely with disabled veterans, the commander said, and most men now are being given care. He pointed out the appalling increase in the number of cases of tuberculosis and the increase in cases of mental breakdown. He gave assurance, however, that the purchase of large hospitals and creation of many others by the government, the government was doing everything possible. Wisconsin men are being taken care of in some way until the new Wisconsin hospital to accommodate 250 mental cases is ready.

The men were warned not to take snap judgment in cases that appear to be neglected. Because Col. Charles R. Forbes, Leon Fraser and others in the United States veterans bureau are bound by the Sweet act. Mr. Barrett asked to have reports of all urgent cases which need attention, and assured quick relief.

Knowing that within a few years, the work of the legion among disabled men will cease, the commander told of new fields on which the eye of the war veterans is turned. One of these is to take up the burden which is being laid down by the Grand Army of the Republic. The new generation must keep alive the fires of unselfish patriotism that will stir men to fight again if necessary. Americanization needs were emphasized because the melting pot of America has not absorbed the large foreign population. Care of men who were acquired.

ACQUIT LABOR LEADER OF CONSPIRACY CHARGE

By United Press Leased Wire
Chicago.—Simon O'Donnell, former president of the Chicago Building Trades council, was found not guilty of conspiracy to extort money by a jury in Judge R. J. Caverly's court Saturday. Three co-defendants also were acquitted. The trial was in progress eight weeks. The state attempted to show that O'Donnell had called strikes and settled them only when paid tribute. The accused men made no defense. The jury took only one ballot.

CHURCH SUFFERS $500 FIRE LOSS

Flashes of light through the windows of the German Methodist church building about six o'clock Friday evening attracted the attention of passersby and saved the structure from total destruction by fire.

The blaze is believed to have started from defective insulation of heating apparatus in the basement. It burned through the timbers near the furnace and through the floor into the center of the main auditorium above. At this stage it was detected by people going home from work and the alarm was sounded. Firemen fought the flames with water in the basement and with chemicals on the main floor.

The ends of several pews were charred. Damage to the building and the pews is estimated at $500 or more.

Five Hundred Men Attending State Conference in Lawrence Chapel

DISCUSS UNEMPLOYMENT

State Commander Scores Opponents of Measures to Repay Soldiers

Assurance of a bonus for Badger veterans of the World War, an outline of a bigger American legion program of activities and plans for relieving unemployment in each community were the keynote features of the opening session of the state conference of post commanders and adjutants of the American Legion in Lawrence Memorial chapel Saturday morning.

MONDAY IS LAST DAY FOR GETTING IN OFFICE RACE

Large Number of Candidates Have Filed Nomination Papers in City Hall

With Monday the last day to file nominating papers for city offices at the election on April 4 new developments are being noted in the political situation in Appleton. Petitions are being filed by candidates for the city clerk and the race for offices promises to develop into interesting battles.

The nominating paper of Dr. D. O. Kinsman, candidate for mayor, was filed late Friday afternoon. The petition of Henry Reuter is being circulated and probably will be filed Saturday or Monday.

Ernest Bachman, city treasurer, has filed his nominating paper for re-election and so far no opposition has developed.

The nominating paper of Theodore Berg, candidate for reelection to the office of assessor, was filed Friday afternoon. Alfred J. Boser, who opposes Mr. Berg for the office but his petition had not been filed at noon Saturday.

A. C. Rule, candidate for reelection to the office of assessor, filed his petition Friday. John Gelsdorf will oppose Mr. Rule for the office.

Four men are seeking the nomination for alderman from the Fourth ward and their petitions have been filed. They are Robert McGilgan, Theodore Beson, John Dick and William Diderich.

The nominating papers of Joseph Mader, John Dove and W. H. Van derhyden, candidates for alderman from the Fifth ward, have been filed with the city clerk. Wenzel Hassman has announced his candidacy for the office and his petition is now in circulation.

A. W. Laabs and J. M. Waites are in the race for alderman from the Third ward and have filed their petitions.

Nominating papers of James A. Wood in the First ward, Charles Thompson in the Second ward and J. H. Fiedler in the Sixth ward have been filed.

MAN SUFFERS TWO KINDS OF BUMPS, HUMORIST SAYS

One Kind is Needless and Other is Necessary To Broaden Life

Although Lawrence Memorial chapel was lighted with but seven candles and two kerosene lamps on Friday evening, Ralph Parlette, noted humorist, delivered his lecture, "The University of Hard Knocks," to a small but appreciative audience. Toward the end of the lecture, the wires were repaired and the auditorium lighted.

In his talk Mr. Parlette divided his university into the College of Needless Bumps and the College of Necessary Bumps in which the colors are black and blue and the college yell is "Ouch." He described the needless bumps by telling of the time when he wanted the coffee pot and his mother said, "No, no, Ralphie," but he grabbed it anyway and got all the coffee pot he wanted, gallons of it. For a month or more, all the neighbors brought all the remedies they read about to rub on his upholstery, as he put it.

ALL NEED BUMPS
The needless bumps are those which are necessary to make all material useful to us. The tree has to have a bump in order to be taken to the sawmill to be made into furniture. Every thing we use has had to be changed in order to be of any value and just so the heart aches and sorrows which come to human beings are what makes them able to live the broader life.

Mr. Parlette told of a little crippled woman who once sat in his audience whom he was sure had had more degrees in the university than he had. He found that she had been crippled just as she was about to become a young woman and had suffered much physical pain. Her mother who was an impressive looking woman asked why her daughter was always the one whom people stopped to talk to rather than herself. The speaker told her that she had not been bumped enough to be interesting.

The later part of his address was given over to amplifying the need for growing bigger and broader if one would stay on top. He demonstrated his advice with a small jar of nuts and beans. When the jar was shaken the beans would always be on the bottom and the nuts on the top. One cannot keep the nuts down nor the beans up. He said that people all ways stay where their size keeps them, but a person either grows bigger and smaller in the course of his life.

INGLER TO SPEAK ON PUSSYFOOTING AT

Dr. F. M. Ingler will deliver an address at a mass meeting for men at 2 o'clock Sunday afternoon in the Y. M. C. A. auditorium under the direction of the Character Builders. Dr. Ingler will speak on, "Pussyfooting, Past and Present." A male quartet composed of Lawrence college men will sing several selections. Following the mass meeting members of a committee composed of men from the Bible classes of the Appleton cooperating churches will meet to discuss the campaign to secure 500 voters for Bible classes by Easter.

Give Nature A Chance To Remedy Storm's Damages

Chamber of Commerce Says Trees Should Be Given Chance to Recover

Don't lose faith in nature and destroy Appleton's beauty by want only using the axe to trees damaged in the sleet storm.

That is the appeal made Saturday by the chamber of commerce following reports that many persons, believing that their trees could not be saved, have cut them down.

The axe should not be used on trees until it has been definitely established that they cannot be saved, the chamber says. Most of the trees damaged in the storm can be saved with just a little intelligent care. They probably will not look as nice this summer as they did a year ago but in two or three years the storm and the trees will be as beautiful as ever. If it is cut down, however, it probably will take two or three times as long to raise another tree to take the place of the one destroyed.

Two or three years ago a tree in front of the home of a prominent physician here was wrecked by a windstorm and he was about decided to cut it down when it was persuaded to have it trimmed and pruned. That tree now is in as good condition, or very nearly so as it was before the storm. If he had ordered it removed it might have required a dozen or fifteen years to grow another.

The Post-Crescent has wired Congressman David G. Casson at Washington asking him to send four or five hundred pamphlets dealing with the care of trees ruined by storms and when these arrive they will be distributed by this newspaper.

Owners of trees are asked to carefully look them over and if there is any possibility of saving them to prune and trim them with as much care as possible. In all probability the tree is not damaged nearly so severely as the owner thinks and a little care will restore its original beauty in a surprisingly short time.

BOOKS ON RADIO NOW ARE POPULAR

Books on radio communication are in great demand at the public library and the demand is constantly increasing with the interest which amateur operators are taking in perfecting their apparatus. "Principles of Radio Communication," by Morecroft is one of the best circulating books at the library during the week ending March 4.

The five books in greatest demand at the library are:

If Winter Comes, Hutchinson.

Nobody's Man, Oppenheim.

Principles of Radio Communication, Morecroft.

Mirrors of Washington, Anonymous.

Coeds Forced To Dress And Eat In Dark

Many a candle which was dipped for no other purpose than to adorn Milady's dresser was burned low on Friday evening when the light at Russell Sage dormitory went out during the supper hour. By the feeble light of a few candles the coeds finished their meal and returned to their rooms to get ready for dates at the rate of approximately five girls to one candle. If a few hairs were out of place and the complexion a bit awry, who could blame the girls for surely one cannot have a feeling for the correct position of rouge or an elaborate coiffure in the dark.

Of the college buildings, Brokaw hall alone had lights when the entire section near the college was disconnected shortly after 6 o'clock Friday evening.

A son was born Friday at Sugar Bush to Mr. and Mrs. C. P. Ashel of Appleton.

EXPERT TO GIVE ADVICE ON LOCAL CIVIC PROBLEMS

Colvin B. Brown Well Qualified to Speak on Community Effort

Local problems confronting Appleton Chamber of Commerce will be thrashed out by Colvin B. Brown, head of the organization service bureau of the United States Chamber of Commerce, when he speaks here next Tuesday noon at a combined meeting of the Rotary club and Appleton Chamber of Commerce.

Mr. Brown will speak on "The Value to the Nation of Well Organized and Well Directed Effort for Community Betterment." His address will follow the luncheon which will be served in the Sherman house at 1235.

As head of the organization bureau of the national chamber, Mr. Brown has kept in close touch with the 1,400 local organizations of which it is composed. In this way he has become familiar with dozens of different problems confronting local chambers and is said to be better qualified to speak on this subject than any other man in the country.

The organization service bureau is a repository for the most complete data with respect to organization methods. Years spent in studying the subject have qualified Mr. Brown to render expert advice with respect to activities that can successfully be undertaken and those that should be avoided by business bodies. During the last five years his efforts have been directed toward assisting local commercial organizations in becoming stronger and he has consistently preached the gospel of the complete combination of business.

BOY SCOUTS WILL HAVE RADIO SET

Pocket Wireless Outfit Enables Them to Keep in Touch With Leaders

Appleton Boy Scouts have added a pocket wireless outfit to their equipment which they are preparing to give a thorough test. The new radio set is the same kind used by police officers in large cities and the receiving outfit can be carried in a coat pocket.

The sending apparatus will be set up in the Galph cottage on Lake Winnebago. A group of scouts, under direction of Leigh Hooley, will hike to the cottage Saturday morning. A squad will remain in the cottage with the sending set while two squads will be sent out in different directions, each carrying a receiving outfit. The hikers will be ordered to go in a certain direction at a certain speed and will be given additional instruction by wireless. The squad that remains in the cottage will guide the squads and an effort will be made to have the two squads on the march arrive at the cottage at the same time.

A wireless telephone outfit is to be installed in the scout headquarters here within a few days. This radio set will receive the daily programs from Chicago, Pittsburgh and Newark.

MARCH 13 WILL BE OPENING DAY OF 'STYLE WEEK'

Impossible to Arrange Automobile Show in Connection With Style Display

After another vain attempt on the part of men in several lines of business in this city to arrange other events in cooperation with style week to be put on by the Advertising club, it has been definitely decided to proceed with the original plans of the club and hold the event the week beginning March 13. Members of arrangements committee have been conferring with the automobile dealers with a view of putting on an elaborate auto show also.

Inability to secure the armory for the week makes it impossible for the automobile men to conduct their part of the proposed program. Special style events probably will be held on the street on the evening of Monday, March 13, if permission of the city will be granted.

HORTONVILLE TEAM LOSES TO NEW LONDON

Company C. New London, defeated the Hortonville Merchants in basketball at the Hortonville auditorium Friday evening, 25 to 31. The first half ended 13 to 9 in favor of New London. P. Polly and S. Millard were the visiting stars while R. Ruter, local center played a good game. The merchants were outplayed in the first half and outclassed in the remainder of the game. New London team has won every game it has played this season. D. Roach was the referee. The auditorium was crowded.

TAKE NO ACTION ON BOAT HOUSE REMOVAL

The Appleton Motor Boat club held a meeting Tuesday evening at its clubhouse to discuss removal of boat houses on city property as requested by the city attorney but no definite action was taken. Many of the boat houses have been abandoned for several years and it is possible those still in use will be removed to a point below the city unless another location in the vicinity of Pierce park is provided.

Meet for Study

Members of the Hustlers club met for Bible study at 11 o'clock Saturday morning in the Y. M. C. A. boys' department rooms. The boys went on a hike in the afternoon under the direction of William Meyer and J. B. Dennison. A meeting for boys will be held in the Y. M. C. A. boys' department rooms at 2 o'clock Sunday afternoon. Ralph Halliday will be the speaker.

Members of the H-S club will go on a sleigh ride party Saturday night to a farm house near Appleton where supper will be served.

COLLEGE SCRIBES BRING LEADERS IN PROFESSION HERE

Dr. E. H. Gardner and Miss Ruby Black Among Celebrities Invited

Dr. E. H. Gardner, author of several effective business books, has accepted an invitation to meet the journalism and business writing students of Lawrence college. The date for his visit has not been selected but he will be the first of several speakers to come here under the direction of journalism interests at Lawrence. The speakers are being secured through the efforts of Prof. W. E. Lindsay.

Dr. Gardner is the author of "Effective Business Letters" and "New Collection Methods," both of which are being used in business writing classes at the local college. He will speak informally to the class and probably will have interviews with a few students. Special luncheon and dinner meetings are being arranged by various fraternities for the author who will discuss business opportunities for college men with them.

Miss Ruby A. Black, instructor in Journalism at the University of Wisconsin and editor of The Matrix, monthly publication of Theta Sigma Phi will hold conferences with girls who wish to enter the journalism profession. She will be the guest of alumnae and active members of Theta Sigma Phi. Miss Black was formerly manager of the Women's National Journalistic Register in Chicago and is well qualified to give the journalistic students advice on preparation for the available positions.

Other speakers who will also come to Lawrence during the spring are Dr. H. F. Harrington of the Medill School of Journalism at Northwestern university and Harry Hansen, editor of the Literary page of the Chicago Daily News. The speakers will not make public addresses in all probability but will be entertained by the journalistic societies.

27 PROBATE CASES ON MARCH CALENDAR

Twenty-seven probate cases will be heard in the March term of Outagamie county court which begins at 10 o'clock next Tuesday morning before Judge John Bottensiek. Cases are as follows:

Hearing claims—Estate of Mathew Rauch, Hugh R. Lambie, Peter Orth, Julius Jagow, Mary Fitzgerald and John Schroeder.

Hearing preferred claims—Estate of Nicholas M. Engler, Ellen Sullivan, Henry Leppla, John Krueger, and Augusta Buss.

Hearing proof of will—Estate of John Schultz, Arthur H. Murphy, Gottfried Reinert, and Theodore Schmitz.

Hearing petition for proof of will—Estate of Oskar Palmenkrug.

Hearing petition for administration—Estate of Theodore Lathrop and Lena Van Ryan.

Hearing final account—Estate of Ard B. VanAlstine, William A. Sickmann, Martin O'Connor, Albert Verwey, William Guenther, Dan H. Lusk, and William Edwards.

Hearing petition for license to sell real estate—John G. Fechter.

CHANGE DATE FOR HIGH SCHOOL PLAY

Announcement was made Friday that the farce comedy, "What Happened to Jones," to be given by members of the junior class of Appleton high school will be held in Lawrence Memorial chapel on March 11 instead of on March 10. Miss Ruth McKenna, who is directing the play, said the high school is fortunate in securing the chapel as the stage and seats there are well adapted to the play.

Robert Bonini plays the title role in the production. He takes the part of Jones, a traveling salesman for a hymn book house and sells playing cards as a side line. He falls in love with "Jess," a mischievous miss who flirts with Jones even when he is masquerading as a bishop.

"What Happened to Jones" is a rollicking, thrifty comedy, written by George H. Broadhurst. The cast is composed of 11 characters. Rehearsals are being held every day at the high school.

THE STAGE

Vaudeville Program

Headlining the six act vaudeville bill at the Appleton Theatre Sunday will be The Royal Filipino String Band, a group of finished musicians in a series of classical and popular instrumental numbers. Kiam and Company will disclose feats of mental telepathy which are said to form an interesting interlude. Heart and De Fay will present "Cuddles and Bonds" as their comedy skit is described.

Arthur and Henrietta, will make known an acrobatic and perch performance; Johnny Raymond, juvenile ventriloquist, is one of the best entertainers of his kind; McFarland and Grant, one in blackface and one in white, will jest and sing in a pleasing manner.

Short motion picture subjects will be shown.

Creditors of Mrs. Anna Helling, deceased, will kindly send their statements to H. T. Belling, 1214 Lawrence st., not later than April 1, 1922.

STATE OFFERING DESIRABLE JOBS

Civil Service Examinations are Announced by State Commission

A considerable number of state jobs are open for those who can satisfactorily pass civil service examinations to be held in Appleton March 18, according to notice posted by County Clerk Herman J. Kampas.

The written examinations are to be for the positions of junior accountant, bookkeeper, junior clerk, assistant clerk, honey grading supervisor, supervising matron, local apary and temporary apary inspector. Salaries for these positions range from $85 and up for the assistant clerk to $150 and up for the honey grading inspector, who will be connected with the department of markets.

Unwritten examinations are for the positions of chief apary, inspector, field entomologist, fire prevention inspector, teacher, cottage matron, family officer and matron and teacher guard. Lists of eligible candidates are to be prepared from those passing these examinations.

Those applying for positions under the unwritten examinations need not appear for the tests here. All that is required of them is to file an application and a paper setting forth their experience with the Wisconsin Civil Service Commission at Madison. Those who desire to take the written examinations must file applications four days previous to March 18.

YOUNG HOLSTEIN HAS FINE RECORD

An especially good production record made by a young Holstein cow has brought considerable satisfaction to Nick J. Losselyoung of the town of Center for the reason that this is the first leading record made by one of his herd of grade and purebred Holsteins. He has entered this record in the contest for the trophy to be given soon by the farm department of the First National bank.

The record was made by a heifer, Johanna Ormsby Posch, which produced 22.25 pounds of butter in seven days from 459.8 pounds of milk testing 3.9 per cent. Her highest daily production was 67.9 or 39 quarts of milk.

Another good record was made by Jewel Combination Plebe, a three-year-old cow owned by Mr. Losselyoung. She produced 19 pounds of butter in seven days from 460.5 pounds of milk. Her highest production was 59.4 pounds or about 31 quarts of milk in a day.

CROPS UNHURT BY BIG SLEET STORM

Local authorities on agriculture are of the opinion that the recent sleet storm did no damage to winter crops. So far this year it is believed prospects are exceedingly favorable for an excellent crop of winter grains.

Had the ground been bare when the storm swept over it is very likely that some damage might have been done both winter wheat and rye. As it was, the snow lay about three feet on the level, protecting the grain beyond any possibility of damage.

Farmers have found that rarely if ever does any sort of winter storm damage the winter grains. The real danger lies in alternate freezing and thawing after the snow has melted away in the spring. Even a hardy growth of clover may be killed entirely in this way. On this account it is yet too early to predict just what yield may be expected from winter wheat and rye but it is felt certain that production of these grains has not been impaired by the recent sleet storm.

WOMAN COULD NOT WORK

Made Strong and Well by Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound

St. Paul, Minn.—"I took Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound for a tired, worn-out feeling and painful periods. Used to get up with a pain in my head and pains in my lower parts and back. Often I was not able to do my work. I read in your little book about Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound and I have taken it. I feel so well and strong and can do every bit of my work and not a pain in my back now. I recommend your medicine and you can use this letter as a testimonial." Mrs. PHIL MASEN, 801 Window St., St. Paul, Minn.

Just another case where a woman found relief by taking Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound. Many times these tired, worn-out feelings and pains about the body are from troubles many women have. The Vegetable Compound is especially adapted for just this condition. The good results are noted by the disagreeable symptoms passing away—one after another.

Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound is a Woman's Medicine for Women's Ailments. Always reliable.

Phone Girls Said "Line Out Of Order" In Their Sleep After Sleet Storm

Telephone Subscribers Understood Company's Difficulties and Exercised Patience, Chief Operator Says.

How many times could you say "That line is out of order," without letting your voice sound weary or exasperated? Just suppose you were a telephone operator at supertime when all the college boys are trying to get their best girls at the dormitories or in the morning when all the housewives are trying to reach grocery stores and meat markets which are disconnected or last Thursday when fond parents were trying to find out whether to send their children to school and all the school lines were out of order. Would you have been able to keep on saying the same thing without at least heaving a great big sigh into the subscribers' ear?

Although no definite count of the telephones which were out of order is available yet, the trouble sheet at the Wisconsin Telephone company office is evidence of the havoc of the storm. The sheet which usually carries not more than ten or a dozen complaints has been lengthened into 20 sheets on which are the trouble reports of toll and local lines. Each day some of these local troubles are remedied and toll lines are being constantly worked on.

BUSIEST PHONES FIRST
Because of the great number of business places which have been without service, first attention is being given these and residence phones will be fixed after them. Many people have been calling the chief operator to tell her that the men fixed telephones in other places right in their block and refused to connect up theirs. The phones where the service is of greatest importance are receiving immediate attention.

According to Miss Gertrude Besch, chief operator, people have been very patient and the operators have had to listen to very few tirades from irate subscribers. Because of the enormous damage done by the storm in all places, people have understood the difficulty which has been facing the telephone company.

When lines were reported working to points outside the city, many people put in long distance calls and could not understand why the operators refused them saying that they were only taking emergency calls. Each subscriber felt that his call was an emergency and should have been given attention. The first day that any toll calls were taken, there were only 50 talked on calls as compared with 500 to 600 under ordinary circumstances. The switch boards in the local office look like pin maps these days. Each line which has been reported out of order is plugged with a small white disc on the switch boards so that the operator may readily tell that it is not usable. Only a very few toll lines are without plugs, but these lines are rapidly coming into use.

A few girls at a time are released from switch board duty to work on selling stock for the Wisconsin Telephone company. The employees are divided into teams in a stock selling campaign and the girls are each given a chance to boost their sales.

COUNTY ASYLUM AGAIN HAS ELECTRIC LIGHTS

Electric light service and telephone service have been reestablished at the county insane asylum after a delay of several days during which candles and messengers were made use of. The county institution was greatly inconvenienced in many other ways by the storm and it will be some time before it is again running normally.

GIRLS! GROW THICK LONG, HEAVY HAIR WITH "DANDERINE"

Buy a 35-cent bottle of "Danderine." One application ends all dandruff, stops itching and falling hair, and, in a few moments, you have doubled the beauty of your hair. It will appear a mass, so soft, lustrous and easy to do up. But what will please you most will be after a few weeks use, when you see new hair—fine and downy at first—yes—but really new hair growing all over the scalp. "Danderine" is to the hair what fresh showers of rain and sunshine are to vegetation. It goes right to the roots, invigorates and strengthens them. This delightful, stimulating tonic helps thin, lifeless, faded hair to grow long, thick, heavy and luxuriant. — adv.

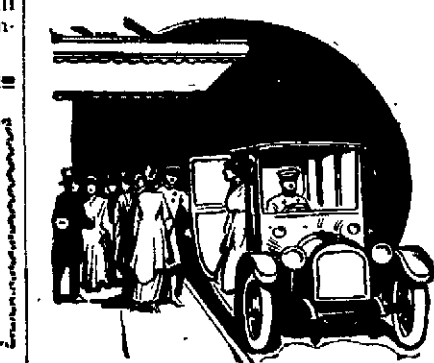

LITTLE CHANGE IN WIRE SCREEN TRADE

"It's difficult to tell anything about it," said A. B. Weissenborn, president of Appleton Wire Works, in speaking of the condition of the wire business Friday. "Some weeks we have a bunch of orders and everything looks favorable for a resumption of former business and then it will be succeeded by a slack period," he said.

Mr. Weissenborn said his plant had been operating since the first of the year at 65 per cent of its capacity. The previous six months it was operated at 60 per cent and during the first half of last year it did very little business.

When asked as to future prospects Mr. Weissenborn would make no predictions.

Water With Meals

Dr. R. H. Bishop

prising how many old truants eating are being broken in days. There is that old saying to hear so often, "Drink water, you men!" and that the normal person should drink all the water he needs with his meals. It has even been said that drinking water with meals helps the digestion. It is true that poisonous substances flushed out of the system by bacteria do not dwell in the large intestine. If you are a pronounced drinker and have some trouble such as indigestion, or if your kidneys, it would be well to consult a physician before drinking too much with meals. There are some types of kidney trouble which are benefited by drinking a moderate amount of water. In many instances, however, the kidneys are not benefited by drinking too much water. The drinking of water immediately before a meal is a good practice. It causes the appearance of digestive juices in the stomach. Then when the food is taken into the stomach it is more rapidly digested than it would have been otherwise. The drinking of a glass of hot water immediately before breakfast is especially good. It causes a proper amount of water to be taken. If we make it unnecessary for the body to dilute the contents of the bowel, there is a saving in energy. Water may be taken freely on an empty stomach midway between meals, by normal healthy men and women. It is preferable, however, to do most of your water drinking at meal time, since a volume of gastric juice in the stomach between meals, is a source of distress.

quantities of water, where it serves no purpose.

Editor of Post-Crescent: In regard to the letter of Dan Wallace stating the disfection of the South Kaukauna Cheese Producers association of which he was director of the board I wish to state that under the circumstances we do not have anything but a bum year.

Out of the official test taken by Wisconsin Cheese Producers association, inspector of the 40 customers the milk of 26 were bad, 9 fair and 5 good, and out of the 5 that were good 4 were officers of the factory.

Q. Were there many strikes in this country during the recent war?
A. C. F.

A. The official records of the department of labor show that there were 6,205 strikes and lockouts in the United States during the period extending from our entrance into the war until the signing of the armistice. It is claimed, however, that none of these strikes or lockouts lasted long enough or was serious enough to handicap our forces in Europe.

A. In the fiscal year 1921, the net importation of tea amounted to 486,507 pounds. This allowed for 71.7 per cent of the country.

Q. How did the word "Dago" originate? B. H.

A. One explanation of the term "Dago" is that it is a corruption of the Spanish word "Diego" equivalent to the English name "James" or "Jack". The term was formerly applied by sailors to Spaniards, Portuguese and Italians in the same manner as the term "Yankee" is applied to Americans.

ORGANIZE TO STOP AUTOMOBILE THEFT

Chicagoans Propose Commission Which Will Register Auto Sales

For the purpose of reducing the enormous number of automobile thefts which have occurred in this country during the last few years, a protective organization known as the Interstate Motor Theft Commission, has been established in Chicago according to word received by Hugh G. Corbett, secretary of Appleton Chamber of Commerce.

By a compilation of figures the commission has learned that America's automobiles are valued at $5,550,000,000 and that autos valued at $300,000 are stolen daily. Losses by theft for one year amount to $100,000,000.

The commission proposes to reduce this tremendous loss and to destroy the traffic in stolen cars by destroying the stolen automobile market which in some sections of the country appears to be highly organized.

They claim to be able to bring this about by standardizing the transfer of ownership through a national clearance system. Every sale of an automobile would have to be recorded with this clearing house. The clearing house would keep an accurate description of every car and theoretically would be able to lay its finger on any car in the country at any time.

Resume Operations
 The Fountain sawmill at Ladysmith resumed operations Friday after being closed down for several days by the storm, according to a letter which William Fountain received from his brother, Fred Fountain, who is in charge. The latter was marooned in Pembine, Mich., for two days and when he reached Ladysmith he found more than three feet of snow on the ground and the company's railroad blocked. Logging trains again are being operated.

EAGLE COMPANY IS MORE OPTIMISTIC

Plant Which Has Been Idle for Months Has Prospects of Starting

The Eagle Manufacturing Co., which with other Fox river valley industries was affected by the business depression from which the country appears to be emerging, has received several orders for tractors within the last 15 days which are to be filled at once. One is for a carload for Pennsylvania, one for a carload for Ohio and another for four carloads to be sent to Canada.

"Tractors will never be cheaper than they are now," said Charles J. Hagen, general manager, "and the indications are the price will advance materially on June 1, by which time it is expected the supply now on hand which was carried over by manufacturers will be exhausted."

The material cut recently made by Ford on his tractor has brought the price down proportionately on all other tractors, but the present prices are only temporary, according to Mr. Hagen who has followed the situation closely, and he advises farmers to buy now if they want to take advantage of the reduction.

Mr. Hagen takes an optimistic view of the coming year and is satisfied there will be a resumption of business, but said it will come gradually.

500 DELEGATES REGISTER
 Lastly, Mr. Barrett urged of the legion that the expenses of the draft shall never be true of the country again; that the physical condition of the boys of today must be made strong enough so the youth of the country can take the place of the men who fought in France. Bronze medals are to be provided every post to be awarded to boys who develop along some line athletically, as one means of improving the physical welfare of the boys.

Approximately 500 delegates were registered from all parts of Wisconsin for the gathering. Most of them arrived Saturday morning and were escorted from the depot by the artillery band. The delegates formed in procession and marched to the chapel behind the band.

Commander Barrett presided at the morning sessions. The convention was opened with the legion ritual and the playing of the "Star Spangled Banner" by the band. Mayor J. A. Hayes then welcomed the delegates, saying the importance of the legion was felt more and more. Commander Lothar G. Graef of Oney Johnston post welcomed the visitors for the post and Mr. Barrett responded, commending the excellent work done by the Appleton veterans and praising the city as the most active place in the Fox river valley. The invocation was delivered by W. E. McPheeters, chaplain of the local post.

Greetings to the conference were read by Austin A. Peterson, Sheboygan, state adjutant and finances officer, from Charles H. Cole, Massachusetts department commander, Col. C. R. Forbes, head of the United States veterans bureau, Lemuel Bolles, national legion adjutant, and C. Thomas Busha, Montana commander.

BIG STORM LAST WEEK REACHED TO KANSAS

W. M. Rohrer received a letter Thursday from his sister, Mrs. M. Selleck of Emporia, Kans., in which she stated that the storm last week reached that part of the country and was in the form of rain and snow. There was a heavy fall of rain, the first that had visited that part of Kansas in over six months, and this was followed by six inches of snow. The ground was very dry and farmers were about ready to do their seeding.

Mr. and Mrs. Michael Derga, 835 College-ave. have been called to Greenleaf to attend the funeral of Mrs. Derka's father John Tisling. Mr. Tisling died at his home at 3:30 Wednesday afternoon after a long illness.

SPEAKERS' BUREAU

Mr. Peterson spent about half an hour presenting various matters of interest to the legion posts. He described the athletic contests for which medals are to be awarded. He told of a speakers' bureau which was being formed to assist the posts and urged veterans to turn out to a man to observe Memorial day. He announced adoption of the adjutant as the national legion flower instead of the poppy but said the latter might continue still to be a memorial flower.

Mrs. Wilson described the recent auxiliary conference in Fond du Lac. She urged promotion of the annual poppy drive and the service flag campaign for industries giving jobs to unemployed veterans. The auxiliary goal this year is for 10,000 members, she said.

Duties of post historians were outlined by D. W. Nelson, Rice Lake, department historian. He said this department had been neglected and asked all officers to start keeping a history when they returned home.

HELP IDLE MEN
 Unemployment work which does not actually place men in jobs and at the same time care for the men and his family while work is being sought is of no account, Mr. Houghtaling said. He told how Milwaukee appointed a committee of 21 through its mayor, with the county council of the legion represented. Help for families was in charge of the Family Welfare association, which cared for 225 families a week on the average.

WIRE COMPANIES RESTORE SERVICE

Splendid Progress is Being Made in Work of Repairing Storm Damage

Black Creek, Hortonville and New London now are working without interruptions.

Telegraph service in the Post-Crescent office was restored Saturday morning. This newspaper had been relying on wireless and reports over Western Union wires since the storm.

1,000 MILE OF WIRE
 More than 1,000 miles of wire have been strung by the telephone company since the storm. Crews today are at work stringing wires from Green Bay to Plymouth and from Stevens Point through Green Lake and Princeton to Milwaukee. When these lines are completed much of the telephone traffic now going over the lines through the Fox river valley will be diverted to the new circuits. Work also has been started on a line from Appleton to Plymouth.

Telephone service for Appleton subscribers will be restored as soon as possible, according to J. T. Quinlan, district superintendent. Service has been restored for business places, doctors and wherever it is important that there be service. Other places will be taken care of as soon as men and material are available.

Rural telephone communication is gradually being restored in this section as volunteer farmers in large numbers gradually replace the broken poles and mend broken wires.

The Twelve Corners and Mackville Telephone company announced Friday that its lines would be in complete working order by Saturday night. Moderate weather the last three days has helped speed up repair work. Several crews have been out resetting poles and replacing wires on this line all week.

Thirty farmers have been at work on lines belonging to the Manitowish Road Telephone company. The men have been working in three different crews. It is said that the deep snow and the fact that the ground is frozen on top only three or four inches has really been a favorable condition in replacing broken poles. Deep frost would have made the work much harder.

 FUNERAL DIRECTING

COLLECTOR OF THE PORTE

By Robert W. Chambers

COPYRIGHT BY S. S. MCCLURE COMPANY. PUBLISHED BY ARRANGEMENT WITH THE LITERARY DIGEST NEWSPAPER SYNDICATE.

In winter the Porte is closed, the population migrates, the Collector of the Porte sails southward. There is nothing left but black rocks sheathed in ice, where icy seas clash and splinter and white squalls howl across the headland. When the wind slackens and the inlet freezes, spotted seals swim up and down the ragged edges of the ice, sleek restless heads, mild eyes fixed on the turbid shallows.

In January, blizzard-driven snow swirls into the pines and sits all day in the semi-twilight, the white ptarmigan covers the softer snow with winding tracks, and the white hare, huddled in his whiter "form," plays hide and seek with his own shadow.

In February, the Porte-of-Waves is still untenanted. A few marauders appear, now and then a steel-gray panther from the north frisking over the snow after the white hare, now and then a stub-tailed lynx, mean-faced, furnished, snarling up at the white owls, who look down and snap their beaks and hiss.

The first bud on the Indian willow brings the first inhabitant back to the Porte-of-Waves, Francis Lee, superintendent of the mica quarry. The quarrymen follow in batches; the willow-bushes seem all there; the wind-torn, shaggy, mean-faced, furnished, snarling up at the white owls, who look down and snap their beaks and hiss.

On the last day of May the company's flag was hoisted on the tool-house, the French-Canadians came down to repair the rusty narrow-gauge railroad, and Lee, pipe lighted, sea-jacket buttoned to the throat, tramped up and down the track with the lumber detail, chalking and condemning sleepers, blazing spruce and pine, sounding fish-plate and rail, and shouting at intervals until the watch-outriggers were shored up, windfalls hacked through, and landslide and boulder no longer blocked the progress of the company's sole locomotive.

The first of June brought sunshine and black flies, but not the Collector of the Porte. The Canadians went back to Sainte Isidore across the line, the white-throated sparrow's long, dreary melody broke out in the clearing's edge, but the Collector of the Porte did not return.

That evening Lee, smoking his pipe on the headland, looked out across the sunset-tinted ocean and saw the white glaucous settling on the shoals and the fisher's scowling overboard and the broad red run-glint on their wings. The smoke of a moss smudge kept the flies away, his own tobacco smoke drove care away. Incidentally both drove Williams away—a mere lead-in-baggy blue-jeans, smooth-faced, clear-eyed, with sea-tan on wrist and cheek.

"How did you cut your hand?" asked Lee, turning his head as Williams moved away.

"Mica," replied Williams briefly. After a moment Williams started on again.

"Come back," said Lee; "that wasn't what I had to tell you."

He sat down on a headland, opened a jack-knife and scraped the ashes out of his pipe. Williams came slowly up and stood a few paces behind his shoulder.

"Sit down," said Lee.

Williams did not stir. Lee waited a moment, head slightly turned, but not far enough for him to see the figure motionless behind his shoulder.

"It's none of my business," began Lee, "but perhaps you had better know that you have deceived nobody. Finn came and spoke to me today. Dyce knows it. Carrots and Lefty Sawyer know it—I should have known it myself had I looked at you twice."

THE June wind blowing over the grass carried two white butterflies over the cliff. Lee watched them struggle back to land again; Williams watched Lee. "I don't know what to do," said Lee, after a silence; "it is not forbidden for women to work in the quarry as far as I am aware. If you need work and prefer that sort, and if you perform your work properly, I shall not interfere with you. And I'll see that the men do not."

Williams stood motionless; the smoke from the smudge shifted west, then south.

"But," continued Lee, "I must enter you properly on the payroll; I cannot approve of this masquerade. Finn will see you in the morning; it is unnecessary for me to repeat that you will not be disturbed."

There was no answer. After a silence Lee turned, then rose to his feet. Williams was waiting.

Lee had never noticed her face; both sun-tanned hands hid it now; her felt hat was pulled down over the forehead.

"If them sluice props caves in, the timber's wasted," Finn proposed, new sluice gates; Lee objected and swore roundly that if the damage was not repaired by next evening, he'd hold Finn responsible. He told them he was there to save the company's money, not to experiment with it; he spoke sharply to Finn of last year's extravagance and warned him not to trifle with orders.

"I'll pay you to follow my directions," he said; "do so, and I'll be responsible to the company; disobey, and I'll hold you to the chalk mark every time."

Finn sullenly shifted his quid and nodded; Dyce looked rebellious. "You might as well know," continued Lee, "that I mean what I say. You'll find it out. Do your work, and we'll get on without trouble. You'll find I'm just."

When Dyce and Finn had shuffled away toward the coast, Lee looked at the figure outlined on the cliffs against the sunset sky—a desolate, lonely little figure in truth.

"Come," said Lee, "if you must work, I will give you enough to keep you busy; not in the quarry, either—do you want to cripple yourself in that pit? It's no place for children, anyway. Can you write properly?" The girl nodded, back turned toward him.

"Then you can keep the rolls, duplicates and all. You'll have a room to yourself in my shanty. I'll pay the quarry wages."

He did not add that these wages must come out of his own pocket. The company allowed him no secretary and he was too sensitive to suggest one.

"I don't ask you where you came from and why you are here," he said, a little roughly. "If there is gossip, I cannot help it." He walked to the smudge and stood in the smoke, for the wind had died out and the black flies were active.

"Perhaps," he hazarded, "you would like to go back to where you came from? I'll send you back."

She shook her head.

"There may be gossip in the camp," he said.

THE slightest movement of her shoulders indicated her indifference. Lee relighted his pipe, poked the smudge and piled damp moss on it.

"All right," he said, "don't be unhappy; I'll do what I can to make you comfortable. You had better come into the smudge, to begin with."

She came, touching her eyes with her hands, awkward, hesitating. "He looked gravely at her clumsy boots, at the loose, toll-stained oversalls."

"What is your name?" he said without embarrassment.

"My name is Helen Pine," she looked up at him steadily; after a moment she repeated her name, as though expecting him to recognize it. He did not; he had never before heard it, as far as he knew. Neither did he find in her eager, wistful face anything familiar. How should he remember her? It was nearly six months ago that, snowbound in the little village on the Mohawk, he and the directors of his company left their private Pullman car to amuse themselves at a country dance. How should he recollect the dark-eyed girl who had danced the "fireman's quadrille" with him, who had romped through a reel or two with him, who had amused him through a snowy evening? How should he recall the careless country incident—the corn-popping, the apple race, the flirtation on the dark, windy stairway? Who could expect him to remember the laughing klan, the meaningless promises to write; the promises to return some day for another dance and kiss. A week later he had forgotten the village, forgotten the dance, the popcorn, the stairway, and the kiss. She never forgot. Had he told her he loved her? He forgot it before she loved him. Had he amused himself? Passably. But he was glad that the snow-plows cleared the tracks the next morning; for there was trouble in Albany and lobbying to do, and a rival company was moving wheels within wheels to lubricate the machinery of honest legislation.

So it meant nothing to him—this episode of a snow blockade; it meant all the world to her. For months she waited for the letter that never came. An Albany journal mentioned his name and profession. She wrote to the company and learned where the quarry lay. She was young and foolish and nearly broken-hearted; so she ran away. Her first sentimental idea was to work herself to death, disguised under his very eyes. When she lay dying she would reveal herself to him and he should know too late the value of such a love. To this end she purchased some shears to cut her hair with; but the mental picture she conjured was not improved by such a sacrifice. She recalled her hair tightly, and bought a clench hat, too big. When, arrived at the quarry, she saw him again, she nearly fainted from fright. He met her twice face to face, and she was astonished that he did not recognize her. Reflection, however, assured her that her disguise must be perfect, and she awaited the dramatic moment when she would reveal herself—not dying from quarry toil, for she did not wish to die now that she had seen him. No, she would live—live to prove to him how a woman can love—live to confound him with her constancy. She had read many romances. Now, when he bade her follow him to the headland, she knew she had been discovered; she was weak with terror and shame and hope. She thought he knew her; when he spoke so coolly, she stood dumb with amazement; when he spoke of Finn and Sawyer, and Dyce, she understood he had not penetrated her disguise, except from hearsay, and a terror of loneliness and desolation rushed over her. Then the impulse came to hide her identity from him—why, she did not know. Again that vanished when he called her to come into the smoke. As she looked up at him, her heart almost stopped, yet he did not recognize her. Then the courage of despair seized her, and she told her name. When at length she comprehended that he had entirely forgotten her, forgotten her very name, fright seized her lips. All the hopelessness and horror of her position dawned upon her—all she had believed, expected, prayed for, came down with a crash.

AS they stood together in the smoke of the smudge, she mechanically laid her hand on his sleeve for her knees scarcely supported her.

"What is it? Does the smoke make you dizzy?" he asked. She nodded; I aided her to the cliff's edge and seated her on a boulder. Under the cliff the sunset light reddened the sea. A quarryman, standing on a rock, looked up at Lee and pointed seaward.

"Hello," answered Lee, "what is it? The Collector of the Porte and the quarrymen roused on the coast, took up the cry. The lumbermen, returning from the forest along the inlet, paused, ax on shoulder, to start at the sea. Presently, out in the calm ocean, a black triangle cut the surface, dipped, glided landward, dipped, glided, disappeared. Again the dark point came into view, now close under the cliff where thirty feet of limpid water bathes its base.

"The Collector of the Porte," shouted the Finn from the rocks. Lee bent over the cliff's brink. Far down into the clear water he followed the outline of the cliff. Under it a shadowy bulk floated, a monstrous shark, rubbing its length softly, as if in greeting for old acquaintance sake. The Collector of the Porte had returned from the South.

The Collector of the Porte and the company were rivals; both killed their men, the one at sea, the other in the quarry. The company objected to pelagic slaughter and sent some men with harpoons, bombs and shark-hooks to the Porte; but the Collector sheered off to sea and waited for them to go away.

The company could not keep the quarrymen from bathing; Lee could not keep the Collector from Porte-of-Waves. Every year a shark or three quarried men fell to his share; the company killed the even half dozen. Years before, the quarrymen had named the shark; the name fascinated everybody with its sinister conventionalities. In truth he was Collector of the Porte—an official who took toll of all who ventured from this Porte where nothing entered from the sea save the sea itself, wave on wave and wave after wave.

In the superintendent's office there were two rolls of victims—victims of the quarry and victims of the Collector of the Porte. Pensions were not allowed to families of the latter class; so, as Dyce said to Dyce's dying brother, "Thank God you was blowed up an' say no more about it, Hank."

There was, curiously enough, little animosity against the Collector of the Porte among the quarrymen. When June brought the great shark back to the Porte, they welcomed him with sticks of dynamite, but nevertheless a weird sense of proprietorship, of exclusive right in the biggest shark on the coast, aroused in the quarrymen a sentiment almost akin to pride. Between the shark and the men existed an uncanny comradeship, curiously in evidence when the company's imported shark-destroyers appeared at the Porte.

"G'wan, now," observed Farrelly, "an' divil shark ye'll get in the water, me bucks! It's sharks' yell harpoon! Sure th' company's full of them."

THE shark-catchers, harpoons, bombs and hook retired after a month's useless worrying, and the men forced them as they embarked on the gravel train.

"Drop a dynamite stick on the nob as his nobs," shouted Farrelly after them—meaning the president of the company. The next day, little Caesar's Homage, indulging in his semi-annual bath, was appreciated and accepted by the Collector of the Porte and his name was added to the unpensioned roll in the office of the company's superintendent, Francis Lee.

Helen Pine, sitting alone in her room, copied the roll, made out the duplicate, erased little Caesar's name from the payroll, computed the total back pay due him, and made out an order on the company for $10.39. Then she rose, stepped quietly into Lee's office, which adjoined her own room, and silently handed him the order.

Lee was busy and motioned her to be seated. Dyce and Finn, hats in hand, looked obliquely at her as she seated herself and leaned on the window-lodge. Lee turned toward the sea. He heard Lee say: "G'wan, Finn," and Finn began again in his smooth, plausible voice:

"I thought you wanted them drills," repeated Finn.

Lee's eyes turned from Finn to Dyce. There was in the sudden faces before him something that he had never before seen something worse than sinister. He recognized it instantly. The next moment he said pleasantly:

"Well, then, tell Lefty Sawyer to take his diving kit and be ready by 3. If you need a new ladder at the dump-deck, send one there by noon. That is all, men."

When Finn and Dyce had gone, Lee sprang to his feet and began to pace the office. Once he stopped to light his pipe; once he jerked open the top drawer of his table and glanced at a pair of heavy Colt's revolvers lying there, cocked and loaded. He sat down at his desk after a while and spoke, perhaps half unconsciously, to Helen, as though he had been speaking to her since Finn and Dyce left:

"They're a hard crowd, a tough lot, and I knew it would come to a crisis sooner or later. Last year they drove the other superintendent to resign, and I was warned to look out for myself. Now they see that they can't do me, and they mean to get rid of me. How dared the messenger unlock the safe before I was notified?"

She turned from the window as he finished; he looked at her without seeing the oval face the dark questioning eyes, the young rounded figure involuntarily bending toward him.

"They tipped that safe off the dock on purpose," he said; "they sent Kinney to Bangor on a fool's errand. Now Sawyer's got to go down and see what he can do. I know what he'll say. He'll report the safe broken and one or two cash-boxes missing, and he'll bring up the rest and wait for a chance to divide with his gang."

HE started to his feet and began to pace the floor again, talking all the while.

"It's come to a crisis now and I'm not going under—if anyone should ask you, I'll have them down. I'll break that gang as they break stone. If I only knew how to use a diving kit—and if I dared—with Dyce at the life-line!"

Half an hour later Lee, seated at his desk, raised his pale face from his hands and, for the first time, became conscious that Helen sat watching him beside the window.

"Can I do anything for you?" he asked with an effort.

She held the order out to him; he took it, examined it, and, picking up a pen, signed his name.

"Forward it to the company," he said; "Caesar's family will collect it quicker than the shark collected Caesar."

He did not mean to shock the girl with cynicism; indeed, it was only such artificial indifference that enabled him to endure the misery of the Porte-of-Waves misery that came under his eyes from sea and land—innumerable, hopeless, human woe.

What could he do for the lacerated creatures at the quarry? He had only his salary. What could he do for families made destitute? The mica cut and crushed and blinded; the Collector of the Porte exacted bloody toll in spite of him. He could not drive the dust-choed, half-maddened quarrymen from their one solace and balm, the cool, healing ocean; he could not drive the Collector from the Porte-of-Waves.

"I didn't mean to speak unfeelingly," he said. "I feel such things very deeply."

To his surprise and displeasure she replied: "I did not know you felt anything."

She grew scarlet after she said it; he stared at her steadily.

"Do you regard me as brutal?" he asked, sarcastically.

"No," she said, steady her voice; "you are not brutal; one must be human to be brutal."

Conscious of the epigram, he looked at her half angrily, half inclined to laugh.

"You mean I am devoid of human feeling?"

"I am not here to criticize my employer," she answered, faintly.

"Oh, but you have."

HE turned toward him and smiled.

"It might interest you," he went on, surprised at the beauty of her eyes; "we're going to try to hoist the safe out of fifty odd feet of water—unless it is smashed on the rocks. Come down when I go at 3 o'clock."

As he spoke his face grew grave and he glanced at the open drawer by his elbow, where two blue revolver barrels lay shining in the morning light.

At noon she went into her little room, locked the door, and sat down on the bed. She cried steadily till 2 o'clock; from 2 until 3 she spent the time in obliterating all traces of tears; at 3 he knocked at her door and she opened it, fresh, dainty, smiling, and joined him, tying the strings of a pink sunbonnet under her oval chin.

III.

The afternoon sun beat down on the dump-deck, where the derrick swung like a stumpy gallows against the sky. A dozen hard-faced, silent quarrymen sat around in groups on the string-pieces; Farrelly raked out the fire in the little engine; Finn and Dyce whispered together glowering at Lefty Sawyer, who stood dripping in his diving suit while Lee unscrewed the helmet and dismantled the lines.

Behind Lee, Helen Pine sat on a pile of condemned sleepers, nervously twisting and untwisting the strings of her sunbonnet.

When Sawyer was able to hear and be heard, Lee listened, tight-lipped and hard-eyed to a report that brought a malicious sneer to Finn's face and a twinkle of triumph into Dyce's disappointed eyes.

"The safe is smashed and the door open. When these eight cash boxes are all that I can see." He pointed to the pile of steel boxes, still glistening with salt water, and already streaked and blotched with orange-colored rust.

"There are ten boxes," said Lee coldly; "go down again."

Unwillingly, sullenly, Lefty Sawyer suffered himself to be inveigled with the heavy helmet; the lines and tubes were adjusted. Dyce superintended the descent, and Finn seized the signal cord. After a minute it twitched; a crowd of white with anger; Dyce turned away to conceal a grin.

When again Sawyer stood on the dock and reported that the two cash-boxes were hopelessly engulfed in the mud, Lee sternly bade him divest himself of the diving suit with reasonable celerity.

"What you goin' to do?" asked Finn, coming up.

"Is it your place to ask questions?" said Lee sharply. "Obey orders or you'll regret it!"

"He's goin' down himself," whispered Dyce to Sawyer. The diver cast a savage glance at Lee and hesitated.

"Take off that suit," repeated Lee. Finn, scowling with anger, attempted to speak but Lee turned on him and bade him be silent.

Slowly Sawyer divested himself of the clumsy diving suit; one after the other he pushed the leaden-socked shoes from him. Lee watched him with mixed emotions. He had gone too far to back now—he understood that. Flinching at such a moment meant chaos in the quarry and he knew that the last shred of his authority would go if he hesitated. Yet with all his heart and soul he shrank from going down into the sea. What might not such men do? Dyce held the life-line. A moment or two of suffocation—would such men prove with the air tubes. He was ready to prove and signals may be easily misunderstood. He laid a brace of heavy revolvers on the dock and smiled.

AS Dyce lifted the heavy helmet upon his shoulders, he caught a last glimpse of sunlight and blue sky and green leaves—a brief vision of dark, brutal faces—Helen Pine's colorless frightened face. Then he felt himself on the dock ladder, then a thousand feet seemed to fall from his foot, and the dusky ocean enveloped him.

On the dump-deck silence reigned. After a moment or two Finn whispered to Sawyer; Dyce joined the group; Farrelly whitened a bit under his brick-red sunburn and pretended to fuss at his engine.

Helen Pine, heart beating furiously, watched them. She did not know what they were going to do—what they were doing now with the air tubes. She did not understand such things, but she saw a line twitch in Dyce's fingers, and she saw murder in Finn's eyes.

Before she knew what she was doing she found herself clutching both of Lee's revolvers.

Finn saw her and stood petrified; Dyce gaped at the leveled muzzles. Nobody moved.

After a little while the line in Dyce's hand twitched violently; Finn started. "Cut that line,"

The next instant she fired at him point blank, and he dropped to the bleached boards with a howl of dismay. The crack of the revolver echoed, and echoed among the rocks; a silence that started followed. Presently, behind his engine, Farrelly began to laugh; two quarrymen near him got up and shambled hastily away.

"Now him up!" gasped the girl, with a desperate glance at the water. Finn, the foreman, cursed and flung down his lines, and walked away cursing.

"Take the lines, Noonan," she cried breathlessly. "Dyce! pull him up!"

When the great blank-eyed helmet appeared, she watched it as though hypnotized. Then, dragging his leaden feet, Lee stumbled to the dock and flung one of the two missing cash-boxes at Dyce's feet, she grew dizzy and her little hands ached with their grip on the heavy weapons. Sawyer, stupid, clutching his shattered forearm, never removed his eyes from her face; Dyce unscrewed the helmet, shaking with fright.

"There, you lying blackguard," gasped Lee, pointing to the recovered cash-box. "Take them all to my office, where I'll settle with you once and for all. I'll find the others tomorrow."

Nobody replied. Lee, flushed with excitement and triumph, stripped off his diving dress before he became aware that something beside his own episode had occurred. Then he saw, staring with sick, surprised eyes at somebody—a woman, who sat huddled on a heap of sun-dried sleepers, sun bonnet fallen back, cocked revolver in either hand, and her dark eyes, tears that flowed silently over her colorless cheeks.

He glared at Dyce.

"Ask her," muttered Dyce doggedly.

HE turned toward Helen, but Farrelly behind his engine, shouted: "Faith she stood off th' gang or the breathin' below wud ha' choked ye! Thank the lass, lad, an' mind she's a gun whin ye go worritin' the fishes for the company's cash-box!"

That night Lee made a speech at the quarry. The men listened placidly. Dyce, amazed that he was not discharged, went back to nurse Sawyer, a thoroughly cowed man. Noonan, Farrelly, and Phelan retired to their shanty and got fighting drunk to the health of the "colleen wid' the gun"; the rest of the men went away with wholesome convictions concerning their superintendent that promised better things.

"Didn't fire Dyce—no, he didn't," was the whispered comment.

Lee's policy had done its work. As for the murderous mover of the plot, the plausible foreman, Finn, he had shown the white feather under fire and he knew the men might kill him on sight. It's an Irish characteristic under such circumstances.

Lee walked back from the quarry, realizing his triumph, recognizing that he owed it neither to his foolhardy impulse, nor yet to his mercy to Dyce and Sawyer. He went to the house and knocked at Helen's door. She was not there. He sat alone in his office, absently playing with pen and ruler until the June moon rose over the ocean and yellow sparkles flashed among the waves. An hour later he went to the dock, and found her sitting there alone in the moonlight.

She did not repulse him. Her innocent hour had come and she knew it, for she had read such things in romance. It came. But she was too much in love, too sincere, to use a setting so dramatic. She told him she loved him, she told him why she had come to the Porte-of-Waves, why she had remembered the kiss and the promise. She rested her head on his shoulder and looked out at the moon, smaller and more silvery now. She was contented.

Under the dock the dark waves lapped musically. Under the dock Finn, stripped to the skin, plunged silently downward for the last cash box, trusting to sense of touch to find the safe.

But what he found was too horrible for words.

"Hark," whispered Helen: "did you hear something splash?"

Lee looked out into the moonlight; a shadow, a black triangular fin, cut the silvery surface, steered hither and thither—circled, sheered seaward and was lost. Then came another splash, far out among the waves.

"The Collector of the Porte," said Lee; "he is making merry in the moonlight."

UGERMAN TO MOVE INTO ROSSMEISSL BUILDING

L. E. Sugerman expects to get into his new quarters in Rossmeissl building vacated by Brettschneider Furniture Co., by April 1. He will occupy the three floors and will install new fixtures throughout. The first floor will be devoted to suits and furnishings, the second to children's department and overcoats, and the third to storage. The attractiveness of the new fixtures will be emphasized by a new system of lighting.

Late Cold Snaps Often Cause Fires

After two or three days of fine weather, when the mercury suddenly drops, the furnace is fired up to keep the house warm.

This firing up process sometimes is done without proper precautions being taken. The result of this carelessness is that your house may go up in flames.

There are a hundred and one ways in which fires may be caused, all of them grouped under the head of carelessness. This lack of care costs the American people hundreds of millions of dollars annually. Because of it there are fires in our country at the rate of more than one a minute.

Some little thing you do or neglect to do about your house or garage may be the cause of a fire. Learn what these fire dangers are in order to protect your property. Any of our readers may have the free booklet on guarding the home against fire. To obtain it, just fill out and mail the coupon below, enclosing two cents in stamps for return postage. Be sure to write your name and address clearly on the lines of the coupon.

The WRONG FACE

By ISABEL OSTRANDER

BEGIN HERE TODAY
FAY TUDOR, wealthy orphan, suffers a nervous breakdown in France after learning of the death in battle of her brother, Wilbur. She returns to the Tudor estate in Sandy Cove and is met by her aunt, an attractive widow.

MRS. CLARA TUDOR, and the latter's daughter, LAUREL. The summer colony is frightened by the reported presence of a "wild man" whom Fay believes has been peering in the windows of the Tudor house. SHERIFF HULSE, and his friend, SERGEANT JOHN BARRY, a New York detective, investigate. Fay is attracted by the personality of CAPTAIN WARREN, her brother's friend, who was with Wilbur when he fell. On the night of Mrs. Tudor's dance.

KENNETH CLAYTON, wealthy philanthropist, who is thought to be in love with Mrs. Tudor, proposes to Fay. She rejects him. After the dance, and before retiring, Laurel confesses to Fay that she is in love with HARRY CADMUS, an old love of Fay's but for whom she has long ceased to care. Fay congratulates Laurel and wishes her happiness. In the morning, Laurel is found dead from asphyxiation and murder is suspected. Fay breaks the news to her Aunt Clara.

GO ON WITH THE STORY
"Doctor Green, Mrs. Tudor wishes you to go to her. She frightens me, I don't understand her! If she would only break down, and cry or faint, I would know what to do for her, but the shock seems to have numbed her."

The doctor vanished down the hall. Sergeant Barry motioned toward the window seat.

"Miss Tudor this may turn out to be a mere case of natural death, but should it not, it will be a matter for Sheriff Hulse, and he has asked me, unofficially, to give him the benefit of my services."

"You mean—suicide?" Fay started in horror. "Laurel had everything in the world to live for! I have already told you how happy she was last night—happier than she has ever been in all her life before."

"Do you mean that something had occurred quite out of the ordinary course of existence for her. A romance?"

"Yes, it has not been announced as yet; in fact, her own mother was only to be told of it today; but the affair would, I know, have met with her highest approval. Young Lieutenant Harry Cadmus had asked her to be his wife."

"She was thoroughly happy in the prospect? You knew of no other romance which would not have been so graciously received by her mother?"

"None whatever. Laurel was desperately in love, as was Harry. If it were not heart disease what can have caused my cousin's death?"

"Until the coroner performs an autopsy we cannot be sure. Miss Tudor are you a light sleeper? Would you know if any one entered the room during the night?"

"I cannot be sure. I returned from France in a highly nervous condition, you know, and that would predispose my awakening at the slightest sound, but I was overstimulated last night by the excitement of the dance and I remained awake long after the rest of the household had dropped off to sleep."

"How do you feel now, Miss Tudor? Does your head feel heavy or congested? Are you in the habit of taking any narcotic or sleeping potion?"

"Oh, never. My head feels quite as usual, Sergeant Barry. Why do you ask? Your questions just now made me think of suicide, even though I knew how manifestly impossible such things could be in connection with my gloriously happy little cousin. Are you suggesting now that there may have been something far worse, that some hideous unspeakable crime was committed in that room last night? Do you mean—murder?"

"She broke off as the door at the farther end of the hall opened suddenly and Mrs. Tudor appeared, leaning upon the doctor's arm."

"I must see her! You shall let me in! I do not believe you, any of you! It cannot be that my baby is dead!"

"She is, ma'am, though I am mighty sorry to say it." The sheriff produced a key and unlocked the door.

She seemed not to have heard, but made her way with the slow, measured step of a somnambulist to the bedside, where she fell upon her knees and took the small rigid hand in hers. The sheriff had remained respectfully outside the door, but like a shadow the young police sergeant had passed him and stood motionless now behind the kneeling figure.

"My baby! Speak to me! You are only sleeping, you will awaken."

But the parted blue-white lips gave no response, and the fixed stare of the glazed half-open eyes convinced the well-known crazed mother that her plea had fallen upon ears forever deaf and of the first outburst of tears she bent her head upon the covert of the bed.

Fay came swiftly forward, and with Sergeant Barry attempted to lift her aunt to her feet.

"Don't touch me!" Mrs. Tudor turned hysterically upon the girl and then her face quivered and she cried appealingly: "Oh, Fay, can't you see I want to be alone? That I could not endure sympathy just yet? My grief is my own! My own!"

Fay drew back in pitiful, shocked amazement but the doctor nodded to her reassuringly and himself escorted the sorrow-stricken woman to her own apartment.

Fay was scarcely dressed when voices sounded from below, among which the nasal accents of Coroner Shaw mingled with deeper, more resonant tones which made Fay catch her breath sharply. How had Kenneth Clayton learned of their tragedy? What had brought him here?

CHAPTER VI
Fay shrank instinctively from a meeting with Kenneth Clayton now, but as a privileged family friend his presence was not amiss at this time of tragedy.

As she descended the stairs she realized all at once that her head did not feel quite right in spite of what she had told Sergeant Barry, and in a sudden fit of dizziness she clutched at the balustrade.

Kenneth Clayton met her at the foot of the stairs and his hand closed warmly about hers. "Is it true that poor Laurel—"

"She is dead, Mr. Clayton."

"I suppose Clara is prostrated."

"Of course, but she—she takes it so strangely! She could not believe the truth at first when I told her."

"That would be only natural, dear. I won't ask you now if you have given a thought to our little talk last night, but I have come to offer my services to both you and your aunt in any possible capacity."

"Oh!" Fay cried in genuine distress. "I am sure that Aunt Clara will be deeply grateful, but you will not think me unkind if I feel that I—I want to be alone? This has all come so suddenly that I don't feel I can discuss it even with so—so good a friend as you."

The coroner's nasal tones sounded from the stairway.

"It isn't whether it's likely or not, doctor; it's what the evidence proves. I don't care if the other girl got off without being harmed, or not, nor if there's isn't a sign of gas in the room. This here's a case of asphyxiation."

There followed an indistinguishable murmur in Doctor Green's deprecatory tones, and then the coroner's stubborn rejoinder:

"The blood test will tell. If I find the indications that I suspect from the appearance of the skin this is going to be one of the biggest cases the county ever knew."

The front door slammed. As the loud, measured steps descended from the veranda Fay turned in horror to her companion.

"You heard?" she asked. "They think it was murder. But how could it have been? The room was lighted by electricity, like all the rest of the house; there is not even a gas range, and we've had no fire in the grate. Besides, how is it conceivable that Laurel could have smothered to death and not even been awakened?"

"Don't try to think about it, my dear." Clayton patted her arm gently. "You know what an alarmist Coroner Shaw is, and as for the sheriff, he is always making mystery out of nothing. Just because a few cushions and a steamer rug were stolen from Pearsall's launch and the pantries of one or two of the summer residences were broken into by some enterprising tramp, our friend here was cooking up a fine little mystery until this morning's affair came along to drive it out of his mind."

"You too had forgotten the man," Fay shuddered involuntarily. That white, drawn face, with its staring eyes, arise in her memory. The wave of dizziness swept over her once more. She got to her feet somewhat unsteadily, with one hand to her swimming head. "Really, if you don't mind, I think I will go and try to rest."

On the stairs Fay came face to face with her aunt. The latter was composed, but very pale, and in her blue eyes there was a haunted, tortured look.

"My dear," she said, "I did not mean to drive you from me just now. I was beside myself. I did not know what I thought or said."

Fay kissed her and went on up the stairs. Despite her assertion that she could not think of Laurel's death the problem confronted her with insistence.

But who on earth could have wanted to harm Laurel? The young girl had not an enemy in the world, and she was facing the greatest happiness which life could hold for her. If this hideous idea of murder could have any basis in fact it must undoubtedly be the work of some insane intruder.

With that thought there came again the memory of that strange, sinister face, and Fay sat bold upright.

Now in retrospect, with her brain supersensitized by the shock of the morning, it seemed to her that, after all, there had been something vaguely familiar in the strained, half-crazed face that had stared into hers from the darkness.

"MOTHER" JONES READY FOR STRIKE

Pittsburg, Kan.,—If there is a general coal miner's strike, this spring "Mother" Jones, 87, veteran of a score of spectacular strikes, will be one of the central figures.

For wherever a mine worker's dispute develops, thither goes "Mother" Jones.

She spurred miners to activity in the bloody West Virginia disorders last summer.

And right now the aged woman is here encouraging several thousand Kansas miners, who are on strike.

"Mother" Jones had been in Pittsburg hardly an hour before she made a speech to miners and their wives.

"Mother" Jones is a favorite among strikers' families because of her motherly face and snow white hair. "I use strong language," she says. "But that's the only way to get results."

FOUGHT 6 YEARS TO AID TEACHERS GET THEIR DUES

Mrs. Grace S. Forsythe Has Always Worked to Help Teacher Profession

BY ALICE ROHE
New York.—"Every time a woman opens the door into new fields all society passes through into a broader life."

The speaker was Mrs. Grace Strachan Forsythe, the first woman associate city superintendent, department of education, of New York city.

Mrs. Forsythe, known all over the country for her fight for women teachers, has been in the New York schools since 1893. Not once in that time has she failed to tilt a lance to advance the status of what she says should be the noblest vocation of the working woman—teaching.

HAVE MORE RIGHTS

"The rights of teachers," she repeated, in reply to my query. "Well, the teachers of New York today have more rights than ever before. But someone had to fight the battle. The struggle for equality has been the woman's struggle. The greatest impetus woman suffrage ever had in this state was the teachers' fight for equal pay for equal work."

It was Grace Strachan who led the women teachers' cohorts on to victory and it took her six years to triumph. "Teachers have never been properly rewarded and women teachers have been the poorest paid of almost any worker. When I began the fight for equal pay some of the women teachers were receiving less pay than the janitor of the building. But now there is no sex discrimination among teachers. We have a good pension and increase salary system. The women teachers today hold an important position in the grand march."

TEACHERS FITTED

"When people criticizngly say 'politics' to me, I reply, 'Teachers are especially fitted to understand politics. They should be wide awake to the civic conditions surrounding them. Why should not the women who have the future of the nation in their hands take an interest in social, civil, national problems?'"

"Of course, one of my great fenses in my long career has been to refuse to stay in a rut—another is that I have tried to keep teachers under me out of a rut, and I have as division superintendent 1000 teachers under me."

While Mrs. Forsythe has been fighting a fight for all women teachers her own advancement is a symbol of their bettered status.

FELIX MENDELSSOHN BAR THOLDA
German Composer of Middle Nineteenth Century

Felix Mendelssohn Bartholdy (1809-1847) was one of the most beloved musicians of the German Romantic school. Surrounded from childhood with wealth, he was given every opportunity for education and travel. He won fame as an organist and orchestral conductor, as well as composer.

Mendelssohn's music is always melodious and beautiful, of a romantic character, but in classical form. He wrote songs, compositions for piano, organ and violin, trios, quartets, orchestra, overtures, concertos and symphonies.

His greatest works are: Song Without Words, Rondo Capriccioso (piano), Saint Paul, Eljah (oratorios), Scotch Symphony, Italian Symphony, Violin Concerto, Midsummer Night's Dream Music, Hebrides, and Fair Melusina Overtures (orchestra).

Overture to Midsummer Night's Dream

Introduction Four prolonged chords, fairy like music.

Picturesque features: Tripping of fairies, theme of duke and routine, romantic theme of lovers.

Climax features: Dance of the Tradesmen, comical braying of donkey, play of elves.

Conclusion: Fairy like theme of the beginning (the dream dissolves) four familiar chords.

The following records are of this selection:

WORLD TEA SHOP CHAIN TO TEACH BUSINESS TO GIRLS

By Ruth Abelling
New York.—Mrs. Ida Jane Dutton, head of the New York Exchange for Woman's Work, has under way plans to girdle the globe with Y. W. C. A. tea shops in charge of college girls.

Mrs. Dutton has just been elected a member of the board of the Needlework Shop of the Young Women's Christian Association and has been asked to reorganize and rebuild that department.

"In this process of reorganization," said Mrs. Dutton, "I shall add home cooking and a tea shop to the Needlework Shop in New York."

"The tea shop will give a thorough business education and experience to the college girl who wants to go into the commercial world, instead of the professional world."

"Many college girls go into the professional world only because it is the natural thing at the completion of a college course, not because they really want to be professional women."

THOROUGH BUSINESS TRAINING

"So we will take into this tea shop to assist with the management commercially bent young college women and will give them a thorough business training while they are employed."

"Then, just as soon as the first girl is capable of taking care of her own shop in connection with a Y. W. C. A., we shall establish another shop in another city."

"The plan," said Mrs. Dutton, "is to continue, training girls and establishing shops until we have circled the world, foreign countries and all."

"The whole circle should be completed within two years," Mrs. Dutton was enthusiastic. "The plan will begin to operate in October."

Mrs. Dutton is one of New York's really important executive women.

Due to her efforts the New York Exchange for Woman's Work has become an institution with a country-wide influence.

Although Mrs. Dutton has always been actively connected with business life and big undertakings of women,

MRS. IDA JANE DUTTON

she has lived an exceedingly domestic life and has always kept up a home.

Physical Man Soon To Pass Out Of Life

Los Angeles.—"Within 20 years spiritual man will have thought physical man out of existence."

"Thus will come the end of the so called material world which has never existed save as a figment of man's composite imagination."

F. L. Rawson, noted English metaphysician, is making this startling proclamation on his lecture tour throughout America.

"The end will come," he says, "when the majority of the world's population recognizes the mist that lies between God or Cause and His divine expression, spiritual human consciousness, will automatically be dissipated. Then the great illusion will be at an end."

Household Hints

BURNED KETTLES
When the bottom of a kettle be comes scorched fill the kettle with cold water, add a few lumps of soda and boil for a few minutes.

CARE OF NAILS
To prevent finger nails from cracking rub a little cold cream or ordinary vaseline into them at night. This softens and nourishes them and gives them a healthy, well kept look.

LEATHER POLISH
Two parts linseed oil and one part of vinegar make a very fine polish for leather. It should be applied with a soft cloth. This softens the leather while it cleans and thus prevents cracking.

REMOVING STAINS
Ammonia is the best medium for removing iodine stains on fabric.

SPARE TIME JOBS FOR FATHER

Often the small knobs break off kettle covers. This makes it hard for mother to lift these covers. It is simple to repair them with corks. Run a small bolt through the cork and fasten it in the hole left by the broken knob.

RUSS PRINCESS IS PENNILESS; WANTS TO GET INTO U. S.

Former American Girl, Widow of Wealthy Russian, Ruined by War

New Orleans.—An American princess, widow of one of the richest men of Russia during the czar's regime, today is penniless and held by officials at this port, hoping that friends will come to her rescue and obtain for her admission into the United States.

She is Princess Tschernitschew, formerly Miss Elizabeth Schick. She is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. John Schick, who lived for a number of years in New York. Her mother was a Russian noblewoman.

A few years ago she left America to become the bride of Prince Ivan a son of the Romanoffs. Today, no longer a citizen, she is threatened with deportation. She has gone through horror after horror.

HUSBAND CRUCIFIED

Her husband was torn from her side and crucified. Her son was taken from her and is believed dead. Her husband's estate, worth millions was confiscated and she herself escaped only after months of suffering and torture.

"Our home was in Castle Gzenczo at Kiev Novgorod," she says. "It was all that Russian castles were in the days of the imperial regime. When the Bolsheviks attacked the castle in 1919, my husband was crucified on the arch of the central entrance, and after that he was shot."

"I did not see it, but my maid, Claire, was an eyewitness. In the presence of the invaders my husband had been made to convince them that I was a servant. The ruse worked and I escaped. But my son Harold, had disappeared. I have never seen him since."

ESCAPES WITH MAID

"My maid and I escaped in the darkness and went to the home of friends. Hiding there until after the invaders had gone, I made my way, helped by other friends, to Frankfurt, Germany."

"From Frankfurt I walked across the whole of Germany. I suffered privations and hardships. I worked as a farm hand in the fields. I worked at other hard physical labor—anything to get a bite to eat and shelter."

"A Belgian butchermaster to whom I told my story provided me with food and some money. I journeyed to Antwerp, and, disguised as a boy stowed away on the steamer Gasconier, bound for New York."

FOUND IN BUNKERS

"For five days I hid in the bunkers. When I finally called out for help, I was so weak from lack of food and drink that I had to be carried to the deck."

"In midocean I was transferred to the Texandrier, bound back for Bremen. I told my story to the captain and he kindly permitted me to remain on the boat, booking me as a stewardess."

"From Bremen I was carried back to New Orleans where I left the ship. With husband, son and parents gone, I am hoping duty that friends will come forward to make it possible for me to stay."

Lenten Dishes

Sister Mary has prepared six sets of recipes that are especially appropriate during the Lenten season. This is the first set, dealing with fish dishes.

HEARTY fish salad may form the main part of luncheon during Lent. A cup of hot cream soup, fish salad, bran rolls, preserves and tea would make an acceptable luncheon for the family or informal guest.

These salads could also be used for an afternoon party or evening the lenten season. Luncheon able is E.T.A.O.I. E.T.A. They are planned here to serve four. The rule should be increased as needed.

ECONOMICAL SALMON SALAD

One and one-half cups flaked salmon, 3/4 cup shredded lettuce, 1 table spoon lemon juice, boiled salad dressing or mayonnaise.

Remove skin and bones from salmon. Canned or fresh cooked fish may be used. Use leaf lettuce. Wash and crisp. Cut in narrow shreds with the kitchen shears.

Mix fish and lettuce and pour over lemon juice. Add mayonnaise to make moist. If boiled dressing is used it should be a rich dressing. The dressing itself furnishes real food value as well as giving the piquant touch to the meal.

MOLDED SALMON SALAD

Two cups cold; boiled salmon or canned salmon, 1 table spoon lemon juice, 1 table spoon minced parsley, 1 hard boiled egg, 1 sliced stuffed olive, 1 table spoon granulated gelatin, 1/4 cup cold water, 1 cup boiling water, mayonnaise, lettuce.

Soften gelatin in cold water for 15 minutes. Add boiling water and stir until dissolved. Let cool. Mix salmon, lemon juice and parsley with about three-quarters cup of mayonnaise. Add the dissolved and cooled gelatin.

Pour about one teaspoon of gelatin into each mold. Add a slice of stuffed olive and then put a slice of hard boiled egg over the olive slice. Fill mold with salmon mixture and put on ice to set and chill. Unmold and serve on leaf of lettuce.

The egg and olives make the mold rather attractive but can be omitted if not wanted. This rule will make six individual molds.

SHAD'S ROE SALAD

Three shad's roes, leaf lettuce, 4 heads endive, pickled beef, salt and pepper, oil and vinegar, mayonnaise.

Clean roe and cook in boiling salted and acidulated water for 20 minutes. Drain. Put in cold water for two minutes and drain again. Dry between towels and cut in thin slices. Season well with salt and pepper, sprinkle lightly with vinegar and pour over oil to moisten.

Cover and let stand on ice for two hours. Cut lettuce in shreds. Arrange fish on bed of lettuce coat with mayonnaise, garnish with endive and thin slices of beets and serve.

SCALLOP SALAD

One pint scallops, 1/2 cup diced celery, 1 teaspoon grated onion, mayonnaise, lettuce.

Clean scallops and cook in boiling salted water for 15 minutes. Drain and cover with the juice of one lemon. Let stand one hour. If scallops are large cut in small pieces before marinating in lemon juice.

Mix celery and fish and grate over onion. Arrange on lettuce and mask with mayonnaise.

FARMERS CUT DOWN ON NUMBER OF HIRED MEN

Madison.—Fewer men will be employed as "hired hands" on Wisconsin farms this year, a bulletin of the state industrial commission indicates. Low prices of farm products are blamed for the decrease in the number of farm laborers.

Five hundred Badger farms reporting to the state service January 1, 1922, had only 232 hired hands, as contrasted with 318 January 1, 1921. The state free employment office, of which there are eleven, report however, that there are many good openings at their disposal, nearly all of which are being rapidly filled.

"There are more surpluses of farm labor this year than there are shortages," the commission announced.

NURSING SERVICE IS DISCONTINUED

Red Cross Chapter Unable to Keep Highly Important Branch

The Appleton Red Cross center now is without nursing service. The board of directors for 1921 voted at its last regular meeting to discontinue the nursing service on March 1. This action was taken because roll call funds were not sufficient to carry on the work.

Seventy-eight former service men called at the Red Cross center during February for advice and assistance.

A group of six women, composed of Mrs. J. S. Taggart, Mrs. Orson Pratt, Mrs. L. C. Sleeper, Miss M. Pyer and Miss Gladys Hyde met with Mrs. A. L. McMullan Tuesday afternoon to receive instructions in Braille writing for blind war veterans. The group will meet again at 9:30 next Tuesday morning to continue the studies. Persons wishing to aid in this work for the blind are expected to attend the meeting.

Volunteer workers are continuing to aid in relieving needy persons in this city and in Europe through the Red Cross. Partly worn clothing is being received at Red Cross Center and different groups in Appleton are sewing layettes and children's garments for Europe.

ORANGE AND BLUE TEAM WINS FROM MANITOWOC

APPLETON COPS STRUGGLE IN WONDER SPURT

Vincetmen Come With Rush in Final Half to Trim Invaders 29 to 25

Staging a fast and furious rally in the second half after their opponents had taken a 17 to 15 lead, Appleton high school basketball tilters smashed and battered their way to a 29 to 25 victory over the Manitowoc high school cagers Saturday night in the Y. M. C. A. gymnasium in a bitterly contested struggle.

The game did not get underway until 9:30. Lights in Alexander Gymnasium were out of commission and efforts to repair the power lines were fruitless. Coach Vincent of the Appleton team then secured the Y. M. C. A. floor for the contest.

The Orange and Blue athletes started with a rush and outplayed the invaders for the first few minutes. Briece hung up the first counter when he caged a field goal from under the hoop after two minutes of play. The teams battled on even terms for five minutes with the ball seersawing up and down the floor.

Briece made the scores 4 to 0 for Appleton after eight minutes of play when he sunk a field goal from a long shot. The Orange and Blue captain came back a few seconds later with a field goal and Gauthier followed with a ringer for Manitowoc, the first counter for the visitors.

Briece hit with a free throw and Gauthier came back with a field goal from a long shot. Ashman caged two field goals on long shots in quick succession and Briece sunk a counter from under the net. Gonia slipped through the Appleton guards and shot a field goal from in front of the hoop and Schuette came back after the next tip-off with a counter from a difficult angle. Gauthier dropped two free throws through the net on Ashman's foul near the basket a few seconds before time was called to end the half and the score for the period was Appleton 13, Manitowoc 10.

Coming with a rush in the second half the visitors outplayed the Vincetmen for the first few minutes and Gauthier's free throw and field goal tied the score after five minutes of play. Briece cut Appleton in the lead again a few seconds later with a field goal but Schuette tied a field goal for Manitowoc and the score was tied, 15 to 15. The visitors went into the lead when Gauthier hit with a field goal from a long shot and Laughlin made the count 17 and 17 a few seconds later with a field goal from under the hoop.

With the score tied and ten minutes to play the Orange and Blue cagers hit their stride again and started playing rings around the Manitowoc athletes. Hornbeck made a field goal from a side shot and Briece caged a counter from the center of the floor. Gauthier brought home the hoop from a difficult angle but Hornbeck came back after the next tip-off and sunk a field goal from under the net. Briece made a field goal from in front of the cage and hooped another on a long shot. Johnson of Manitowoc sunk a field goal and Schuette followed with another. Briece dropped in a free throw and Gauthier slipped a field goal from the center of the floor as time was called. Appleton scored 16 points in the second half to 15 for Manitowoc.

Briece was the outstanding star of the contest. He scored 19 of Appleton's 29 points and played a great game over the floor. Gauthier, with game over the floor, Gauthier with six field goals and three free throws to his credit, starred for Manitowoc. The summary follows:

Appleton	Manitowoc
F. Briece	Chernak, 1
P. Kanouse	Schuette, 1
C. Laughlin	Johnson, 1
G. Ashman	Gonia, 1
G. Zussman	Johnson, 1
Substitutions—Hensens for Zussman, Zussman for Kanouse, Hornbeck for Ashman, Ashman for Laughlin, Pech for Chernak, Schomier for Johnson, Johnson for Schomier.
Field goals—Briece 8, Ashman 2, Hornbeck 2, Laughlin 1, Gauthier 6, Chernak 1, Schuette 2, Johnson 1, Gonia 1.
Free throws—Briece 3, Gauthier 3.
Referee—Napiejewski (Wisconsin.)

With a runner on first base the umpire calls a balk. The pitcher, the pitcher disregards the ruling and delivers the ball to the batsman, who hits safely. The runner on first tries to go to third on the hit and is thrown out at that base. What about such a play?

The moment the umpire calls a balk on the pitcher play is automatically suspended. No further action is possible. The runner who was on first and was thrown out trying to go to third should merely be sent to second, to which he was entitled on the called balk, and the batsman who hit safely made to bat.

BLOUIN LEADS ALL PIN STARS

Jimmy Blouin of Chicago won the championship of the world's classic bowling tournament recently held in Chicago.

Pitted against 24 of the very best bowlers in the country Blouin emerged on top. Each bowler met every other contestant in a five-game series. The winner was decided on a point system.

Blouin was first with 547.14 points to his credit. P. Wolf of Chicago was second with a mark of 535.03. M. Lindsay of Stamford, Conn., third with 530.11 points, and Jimmy Smith of Milwaukee fourth with a 528.42 rating.

Jimmy Smith, who finished fourth, was a top-heavy favorite to win at the start of the tournament.

LAWRENCE FIVE TO PLAY RIPON

Quintets Meet Tuesday Night for Second Place in Collegiate Race

The Lawrence college basketball team has two games on its schedule for next week. The Orange and White quintets at Ripon Tuesday night and Carruth quintet on the Carroll floor Friday night.

Coach H. D. McChesney has been sending his men through workouts every afternoon this week and Lawrence tilters will be in good shape for the Ripon contest. The squad will practice in Armory G Saturday and Monday afternoons in order to become accustomed to a big floor as the Ripon court is much larger than the basketball floor in Alexander gymnasium.

Lawrence holds second place in the race for Wisconsin collegiate basketball honors. A victory for the Blue and White Tuesday night will clinch the position while if Ripon wins the Congregationalists will share second honors with Lawrence.

The teams are sure to put up a bitter struggle and the game is attracting interest in collegiate athletic circles throughout the state.

SPORT VIEWS AND NEWS

Purdue copped the Western Conference basketball championship last Saturday night when it defeated Indiana, while Illinois, holding second place in the race, was subdued by Michigan. The Bolshermakers, however, were unable to win the title in their own state, Indiana. Wabash college won the championship Wednesday night by defeating Purdue 37 to 27 in the deciding game. The peculiar angle to the whole affair is that "Piggy" Lambert, Purdue coach, is a former Wabash man while Peter Vaughn, Wabash coach, is a former Purdue player.

The Wisconsin basketball team has a slim chance to finish in second place in the Western Conference standing. To finish in a tie for second place Wisconsin must win all of its remaining games while Illinois must be beaten by Purdue Saturday night. The Badgers face three severe tests before the conference season closes, meeting Minnesota at Minneapolis and Chicago at Madison and again at Chicago. Michigan may finish the season in a tie for second place by winning from Iowa and Northwestern in its two remaining games, providing Illinois loses to Purdue Saturday.

Harry Willis is back in the running for a bout with Jack Dempsey for the world's heavyweight title. Willis pulled off Kid Norfolk in two rounds Thursday night and showed in the battle he has returned to fighting form. Willis made a poor showing against Sam Langford and the critics were about ready to send him to the scrap heap. Willis said he was off form in those battles due to illness and his statements are substantiated by the scrap he made against Norfolk who is probably a better man than either Langford or Langford. Fight promoters will now give Willis serious consideration when they get ready to bid for a heavyweight championship scrap.

Jack Dempsey will leave these shores on April 1 for a trip to Europe. The heavyweight champion has become unable to remain idle until some battle can be brought along who stands a chance of putting a dent in his gladiol and seeks to knock a few European heavyweights kicking while he is waiting until American promoters secure a contender for him. While the champions of champions are on the other side the contenders in this country will be fighting it out and an opponent will be found for Dempsey for a bout on July 4.

Freddy Welsh, former lightweight champion, is to try a comeback. The aged Englishman, now 26 years of age, will engage in his first bout in many years when he stacks up against Young Fulton in the Erie, Pa., ring next week. Welsh prides himself on the fact that after fighting for more than 15 years his ears are not cauliflower nor his features battered. Welsh is through as a topnotcher. He was only the shadow of his former greatness when Benny Leonard battered him to the canvas back in 1917 and won the title. In spite of his unlimited little knowledge Freddy will certainly get his when he starts mingling with the present day lightweights.

Age has slowed him up and dimmed his eye. He will stop many a swing with his bat and his map may not be changed and his manly beauty ruined.

Changes are expected to be made Saturday and Sunday among the leaders in the state bowling tournament for Elks when Kenosha and Milwaukee maple hunters perform on the drive in tourney sessions. Twenty Kenosha five-man teams and doubles and singles bowlers will roll and a number of the best Cream City pin knockers will shoot at the prize money. Among the Kenosha Elks are some of the best bowlers in the state and they are coming here expecting to roll into top places and hang up high scores that will stand for the remainder of the series.

The state tournament will be in full swing next week. Sessions are scheduled for afternoon and nights. Teams from Appleton, Milwaukee, New London, Oshkosh, Two Rivers, Manitowoc and Marshfield will roll.

TEAM PLAYER IS MORE VALUABLE THAN MERE STAR

Greatest Performer Not Always of Highest Value to His Club in Race

By Henry L. Farrell

New York—Award of the trophies which the major leagues have put up for the player voted the most valuable in the league will provide good material for the stove league next winter.

Putting up prizes to spur on the athletes may not have the effect of making a marked improvement in the game, but the choice of expert judges should go a long way in answering the annual arguments about the relative value of star players to their club.

Babe Ruth by a popular vote probably would be chosen as the greatest player in baseball, but American League fans do not agree that he is the most valuable player to his club. Temperament, reliability, unselfishness in addition to mechanical ability, go to make up a valuable player. One player might be able to hit 400, field 999 and steal a hundred bases a year, but if he wasn't in condition to be out there every day, if he wasn't willing to put the interests of the club above his own, if he bucked the management and broken, he might not be as valuable as a less skilled diamond mechanic possessed of team spirit.

Branch Rickey, manager of the St. Louis Cardinals, was talking during the winter baseball meetings about Rogers Hornsby, champion batter of the National League.

Hornsby is not only a great player but he is a great man for a ball club. Rickey said. "His batting average isn't his only interest in the game. He generally is sent to the plate to hit, but he change my mind, he is there to get the signal. On the field, he is the same way. Chances for an error never enter into his game. He goes after them all good and bad. He expects no favors and considers himself no better than fellow members of the club. He can be corrected, although I must admit that it is seldom he needs it."

Bobby Quinn, business manager of the St. Louis Browns, speaks in the same glowing terms of his star, George Sisler, one of the greatest all-round players in the game.

Miller Huggins, manager of the Yankees, has never issued any public testimonials about Babe Ruth but the eccentric ways of the "Bum" are well known around the circuit.

From 1911 to 1914 the same scheme of rewarding the best player with a prize was used by the major leagues. The selection was always popular and in the majority of cases the choice was a player of the best type. In the National League, the winners were Frank Schulte, Larry Doyle, Jake Daubert and Johnny Evers. In the American League the winners were Ty Cobb, Tris Speaker, Walter Johnson and Eddie Collins.

The winner will be decided by the vote of a baseball writer in each city and one other fan not connected with the game. Each will nominate eight players, the first to be given eight points and so on down. The player getting the most points from all nominations will be the winner.

Chief Bender, famous for years as a big league pitcher, is to manage an International League club the coming season.

Bender is one of the best shots in the country. During the winter he puts in his time representing one of the biggest fire concerns in the country.

Eddie Collins, now with the Chicago White Sox, but who for years was a teammate of Bender on the Athletics, is responsible for the following story with Bender as the central figure:

Bender is strong for duck hunting. The story goes, that he and several other players went on a duck hunt after the close of the season.

In company with one of the players Bender said what he believed was a flock of ducks. Creeping up carefully, Bender blazed away at the opportune moment.

To his great delight every duck, with the exception of one, remained motionless. Bender confided to his fellow player that if he had had his old gun he would have gotten all of them.

Upon reaching the flock of ducks, to the great disgust of Bender, he discovered that he had shot into a flock of decoys and the only real live bird in the bunch had scored away.

F. Hilgenberg of Kaukauna rolled into third place in the all events of the state bowling tournament for Elks Friday night on the Appleton Elks home drives. His score for the all-events was 1,738. Mr. Hilgenberg shot 245 in the final game of the five-man event, the highest individual mark for a game made this far in the tournament.

Kaukauna, five-man, doubles and singles bowlers failed to place among the leaders in the tournament events. Five Milwaukee men bowled singles but failed to shoot high enough to get places with the leaders.

The scores made Friday night follow:

INTERLAKES MEET FAST CAGE TEAM

Play Hortonville Merchants Quintet Tuesday Night on Armory G Floor

Playing their last home game of the season the Interlakes quintet will clash with the strong Hortonville Merchants five, Tuesday night in Armory G. The game was scheduled to be played on Feb. 22 but was postponed on account of the storm.

The Interlakes have been working hard in preparation for the battle and will go into action against the fast visiting aggregation with every man in fine shape. Elliott and Day will start at the forward positions. Gregory will play center and Kessler and Gardner will perform at the guards.

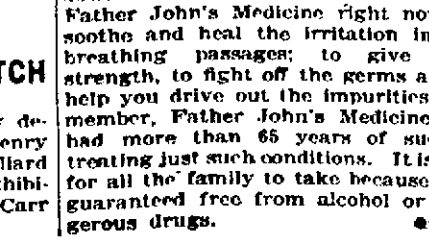

The Hortonville athletes will come to Appleton accompanied by about 150 rooters who believe their team will finish on the long end of the score.

A preliminary game is being arranged between the Interlakes girls' team and Hortonville girls. The preliminary struggle will get underway at 7 o'clock. A dance will follow the contests.

THE COUGH THAT KEEPS YOU AWAKE

It Saps Your Strength—Get Rid of It By Taking Father John's Medicine

Here Are A Few Baseball Problems For Bosses

By Billy Evans
Several big problems confront a number of major league managers. They must be solved during the spring training trip.

The New York club has the outfield problem on its hands. Babe Ruth and Bob Meusel will be out for five weeks as the result of the suspension by Judge Landis.

Manager Miller Huggins must fill that void in some way so that the loss of these two players will not seriously handicap the chances of the Yankees to repeat in the American League.

The pitching problem is the most serious one that confronts Manager Speaker of the Cleveland club, the runner-up in the American League last season.

Either Walter Miles or Jim Bagby must do a large comeback for the Indians, possibly both. If Speaker is going to make things interesting, the rest of the club will deliver if it gets pitching.

Detroit has two infield positions, as well as pitching to worry about. Jones at third and Blue at first will show real class. If Pep Young returns to form second base will be satisfactorily taken care of.

Shortstop is the big question at Detroit, with second base in doubt. A team that is not satisfactorily taken care of at those two most important positions is under a very serious handicap.

If it is Manager Cobb's good fortune to have one of his recent infielders make good at short it will go a long way toward settling his problem.

Lack of consistent pitching played havoc with the Tigers' chances last year. It is possible that the recruits Ellette and Johnson will add considerable strength to the Tigers' pitching staff.

Perhaps the biggest task that Manager Gibson of Pittsburgh will face is to make his players forget all about the 1921 pennant race. After seemingly having it won the Pirates blew in the stretch.

The gnish of the 1921 season is not going to add any confidence to the Pirates. In addition, Gibson may be without his star catcher, Schmidt.

who threatens to retire because of a salary difference.

Incidentally Gibson has a few infield worries. Third base is a matter of doubt, likewise second may cause him trouble. This fellow Traynor, who joined the club last fall, looks like a good bet to solve Gibson's worries in the infield.

At Cincinnati Pat Moran is going to have practically a new infield. At short and third will be Caveney and Pinelli, two newcomers to Cincinnati. At second and first will be Bohne and Fenscen.

While lacking major league poise this infield seems to have great promise, and may go big when it gets settled to big league ways. In the meantime, however, Pat Moran may have some anxious moments. If Eddie Roush quits his absence will be felt at bat and in the field.

It's the same story in every training camp with the possible exception of the New York Giants, who seem pretty well fortified. Outside of McGraw every other manager has some serious problems to solve between now and the opening of the season.

DEMETRAL WINS MAT BOUT FROM HASSANE
Milwaukee. — Jimmy Demetral, Greek wrestling champion of the state defeated Young Hassane, Gary, Ind., Turk, in two out of three falls at the Gayety theater Thursday night. The match was one of the most thrilling ever witnessed here involving contestants who were almost perfectly matched.

Demetral scored two falls and Hassane one, the first going to the Greek in 3 1/2 minutes with a bar arm. Demetral conceded the second fall after falling into a double wrist lock after 9 1/2 minutes of wrestling. The match was decided a half hour later when Hassane conceded the final fall to Jimmy, who punished his opponent pitifully with a vicious too hold.

VALVE-IN-HEAD Buick MOTOR CARS

Consider the Door Construction on the Buick Four Sedan

This is merely another example of the care with which Buick bodies are built and of the attention to details which contribute so much to ownership comfort.

Notice the solid steel lug on the door. When the door is closed this lug fits into a slot on the door post. It is held firmly in place within the slot by means of two heavy pieces of metal.

This device holds the door rigid—prevents its rattling no matter how rough the roads and also prevents wear in the tongue of the lock—a characteristic occurrence when the door is held closed only by the lock itself. This is a feature on all Buick closed cars.

AUTOMOBILES FOR SALE

WHY WE MUST TELL YOU THE WHOLE TRUTH ABOUT OUR USED CARS
If a house is built to last 50 years and is 5 years old, you can hardly buy it at 10% under the market price of similar new houses.
But an automobile that is built for 50,000 miles and that has gone but 5,000 miles, can be bought for a great deal under 10% off the price of a new car.
The used cars which we offer were received by us from our customers in this community. We accepted them as cash in part payment for new cars, and so have in effect, purchased them with our own money. We insist on knowing their real condition before we invest in them.
When we receive these cars we go over them thoroughly in our shops and still more fully determine their exact condition. Many of the cars we offer are completely overhauled, and worn parts replaced with new wherever necessary.

END REHEARSALS FOR COLLEGE PLAY

Final rehearsals are being held for the three plays which the Sunset Players will produce in Lawrence Memorial chapel at 8:15 Monday evening. These plays are being produced by one of the undergraduate drama clubs of Lawrence college which has been doing a great deal to stimulate the interest in the "Little Theatre" movement and in college dramatics. All the work of putting on the plays is being done by members of the club from the acting to the making of the scenery and costume of the plays. The plays include "Uncle Tom's Cabin" by Zane Grey, "The Light of the Moon" and "Fourteen." Miss Florence Schneider will be Mrs. Pringle in "Fourteen" while Miss Dora Uren will be Elaine and Edwin Poole will be Dunham, the butler. Miss Mra. Ludwig will be "Florence" in "The Light of the Moon." Allen Rice will take the part of Man, Mary Townsend. Aunt Evelyn Jarrett, Girl and Geneva Faver, Pierret, Arthur Zeller will have the title role in "Uncle Jimmie." Other characters include Marvin Vaughn as Uncle Rod; Esther Nelson, Miss Sylvia, Miss Mary; Helen Braden, Grandma; Mary Bennett, Mitty; and William Case, Josef.

Discuss Divorce Problem The regular meeting of the Joint Ministerial association will take place at 10:15 Monday morning in the church. The subject will be "The Divorce Problem." The discussion will be led by the Rev. J. H. Tippett.

Start Sawmill The Standard Manufacturing Co. started up its new sawmill Friday for the first time. The building and machinery is new and the latter worked so perfectly that very few adjustments were necessary. As there is considerable custom saving to be done the sawmill will be in operation daily for the next few weeks.

No Sunday Service Because of the fire at the German Methodist church on Friday evening, there will be no Sunday services in that church. The church will be repaired next week and services will be held on the following Sunday as usual.
